

W. J. BOWSER DIES SUDDENLY TO-DAY

Death Will Delay Poll in Victoria Procedure Must Be Recommended For Voting Here

Balloting in Vancouver Centre Will Also Be Postponed Through Passing of W. J. Bowser: Was Candidate in Both Places

Polling Here Possibly Will Be Late in November, Returning Officer Says; Other Candidates Need Not Renominate

The death of W. J. Bowser, K.C., to-day will have the effect of postponing the polling day for the provincial election in the ridings of Victoria and Vancouver Centre at least three weeks, according to the interpretation placed on section 59 of the Elections Act by F. A. Willis, the Victoria returning officer.

Mr. Bowser was a candidate in Victoria and Vancouver Centre. These are the only two ridings affected and the election will proceed in the other thirty-seven constituencies, it is presumed.

According to the Elections Act, nomination of candidates must start afresh if a candidate dies after nomination. All those who are already officially in the lists do not need renominating, but the list is opened for fresh nominations.

The section covering this emergency is number 52, which reads as follows: "If after the adjournment of an election by the returning officer for the purpose of taking a poll, one of the candidates nominated dies before the poll has commenced, the returning officer, upon being satisfied of the fact of such death, shall countermand the notice of the poll, and all the proceedings with reference to the elections shall be commenced afresh, in all respects as if the writ had been received by the returning officer on the day on which proof was given to him of the fact of such death; but no fresh nominations shall be necessary in the case of a candidate who stood nominated at the time of the countermanding of the poll."

Mr. Willis explained that he will have to release his proclamation and allow eight days at least for nominations. A reasonable time must then elapse before the poll may be taken so that the polling will likely not take place here until late in November. In the regular election three weeks elapsed between nomination day and polling day, but all this time would not be required in the case of a candidate who was a candidate in Victoria with George McGregor, C. R. Bishop and Alderman Walter Luney. In Vancouver Centre his running mate was W. J. Scribner.

AUSTRALASIAN TRADE TREATY

New Zealand and Australia Sign Agreement For Wider Preference Basis

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 25.—Draft of a new Australian-New Zealand trade treaty made public to-day shows important concessions by New Zealand for Australian dried fruits, along with extension of the preferential tariff at present accorded United Kingdom goods.

The agreement further provides that if the New Zealand government is satisfied at any time there has been a diversion of trade from the United Kingdom to Australia, it may notify the Australian government, on which both governments may use their endeavors to check such diversion.

In such a case, if mutually acceptable methods are not adopted within a reasonable time, New Zealand is permitted to take action to restore the balance, provided the Australian volume of trade is not reduced below that existing March 31 last.

Guards On Lookout For Sugar Smugglers

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—General orders have been issued by Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters to its coastguard and land forces to be on the lookout for sugar smugglers. The two-cent-a-pound federal tax creates possibilities for a lucrative smuggling trade but Maj.-General J. H. MacBrien, commissioner of the R.C.M.P., does not believe it has reached any large scale. Police headquarters said arrests had been made in the St. Lawrence and Maritime provinces, where there is easy access from the sea, but the contraband trade was not excessive.

The federal tax, announced in the last budget, has been collected from refineries, so any sugar smuggled into the country would escape the impost.

Winooka Last In Race at Laurel

Laurel, Md., Oct. 25.—Winooka, Australian champion, making his first start in the eastern United States, finished last in a five-horse field as A. C. Postwick's Mate won the 2,500 Challenger Purse over six furlongs to-day. Sheldon H. Fairbanks' Gold Step was second, Lee Rosenberg's Kerry Patch (third), and A. L. Astor's Character fourth.

SEVEN LOGGERS ARE DROWNED

Canadian Press
Saint John, N.B., Oct. 25.—Seven log drivers were drowned to-day in the Salmon River, forty miles from here, according to meagre information received in Saint John.

Swollen by overnight rains, the river became dangerous and the men took refuge on a small island. The river continued to rise, however, and the men were swept downstream and drowned.

Liberals Invite Co-operation On Recovery Policy

Conservatives Joining to Ensure Continuance of Responsible Government

Crowd at Shrine Auditorium Applauds Stirling Speech of Hon. Ian MacKenzie

Liberalism, with leadership, policy, prudence and assurance of stable, responsible government was sharply contrasted with the other alternatives offered to British Columbia voters on November 2 by Hon. Ian MacKenzie, M.P., in the course of a stirring address received with enthusiasm by an audience that packed the Shrine auditorium for the meeting in support of the four Liberal candidates yesterday evening.

Capt. MacKenzie's address was delivered with characteristic force and eloquence. The audience laughed at the witticisms that punctuated his remarks and applauded his lucid exposition of the Liberal platform and problems of the day.

As alternatives to the sound and commendable restoration objective of the Liberal Party, he pointed out the dangers to the electorate of the Tory Party, as extinct as the dodo. They had the independents, with no leader—a hydra-headed aggregation of political self-seekers. They had the C.C.F., with no leader, and a policy of straight socialism and a desire for the destruction of personal liberty.

"I submit," said the speaker, "the Liberal Party is the only one with a consistent policy and a resolute leader. We must choose between stability of government or confusion. Rally round for the Liberal candidates is a vote for good government."

Scoring those who had deserted the Conservative Party in British Columbia as deserters and political adventurers, Capt. MacKenzie remarked the Conservative Party which stood for so much and had given stable party government in British Columbia, had been betrayed and crucified by the political traitors that had fawned about the Tolmie Government and the greatest of them all.

GOLD PRICE IN U.S. IS $31.36

Government Starts Buying at 27 Cents an Ounce Above World Quotation

No Total Amount For Purchase Announced By Officials To-day

By RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press, Staff Writer

Washington, Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt's plan for controlling the United States value of gold in expectation of rising commodity prices was put into operation to-day with an offer to purchase newly-mined gold at $31.36 an ounce, twenty-seven cents higher than the day's opening quotations on world markets.

Announcing the price, Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said the metal would be paid for in the corporation's ninety-day debentures, which, he added, could easily be converted into cash.

Government fiscal experts were working out a plan whereby the debentures can be discounted at a rate which will bring their holders the full purchase price for their gold.

An executive order from the White House and regulations from the Treasury Department would be issued later in the day, outlining the procedure by which the mining companies will transfer their gold to the corporation, it was said.

HIGHER PRICES

Thus the government embarked on the newest phase of its manifold programme for increasing commodity prices, in the step proclaimed by the President to be toward a "managed currency."

The price compares with a price of $31.09 an ounce in London this morning, figured on the basis of $4.78 to the pound sterling, the opening dollar quotation there.

This was the lowest London value for the dollar in a month, representing a loss of over twelve cents, since yesterday.

The purchase plan applies only to newly-mined United States gold, including that from territories.

No amount to be bought was set, it being explained the government would pay the price fixed for whatever amount of the precious metal was offered.

While Treasury experts were busy drawing up the regulations, officials awaited reaction to the gold mining industry to the offer.

LONDON GOLD PRICE

London, Oct. 25.—Price of bar gold in London to-day was $31.67 an ounce in terms of the Canadian dollar, based on the London price of 193s 10d, and the quotation, sterling in London at $4.78. Yesterday the Canadian equivalent was $30.52.

SILVER PLANS

Washington, Oct. 25.—With the gold programme embarked on, President Roosevelt was expected to-day in usually informed sources to turn his attention immediately to aiding silver.

Congressional advocates of remonetization monetary have indicated the President was studying the silver question closely and consultation soon would be held to seek a definite programme to aid the white metal.

ITALIAN PRINCE IN CRASH IN GERMANY

Berlin, Oct. 25.—Newspaper circles were mystified to-day by an "important notice to editors" issued by the semi-official Wolff News Agency which read:

"Concerning the traffic accident to the Italian Crown Prince and Princess Hesse on the road to Potsdam, the Berlin police president ordered nothing be made public."

The Italian embassy denied the accident and said the royal couple was not in Berlin. However, from a reliable diplomatic source it was learned the Italian couple has been in Berlin incognito.

The diplomatic source affirmed there had been a crash with another automobile, but the passengers were not hurt.

JOHN GORCH IN BOSTON COURT

Boston, Oct. 25.—John Gorch, questioned yesterday regarding the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby, was arraigned in municipal court to-day on three fugitive warrants charging larceny and impersonating a police officer. Police said victims of swindles in New Jersey, New York and Greater Boston would view the prisoner.

No Dearth Of Husbands Here

There is no dearth of husbands in Victoria. At least if the proposition is attractive enough.

Before The Daily Times had been on the street an hour yesterday afternoon with the story that Mayor Leeming had been approached to find a husband for a woman who has a job and some property, two prospective bridegrooms had been into the mayor's office to see about it.

This morning there were two more on the job and late yesterday evening the Mayor received a telephone call at his home from a man who was willing to take a wife.

Details of the applicants have been taken at the mayor's office and the woman who seeks a husband will have her choice.

Mayor Leeming believes, however, he will have to call a halt to any future cases of this nature.

Bangkok, Siam, Oct. 25.—Slaying of Phya Sri Siddhi Songgram, one of the Siam rebel leaders, was expected by government leaders to-day to aid in overcoming the revolt quickly. Songgram, associate of Prince Boredej, commander of the rebel forces, was killed by a sergeant.

It was learned the government troops were holding their own against the rebels.

MANITOBAN WINS $140,000 PRIZE

Ira N. Kirk Holds Ticket on Winning Horse in Irish Hospitals Sweepstake

Crandall, Man., Oct. 25.—Ira N. Kirk, forty-year-old farmer, is richer by about $75,000 as a result of Raymond's unexpected win in the Cambridgebridge stakes at Newmarket to-day. Kirk was the only Canadian to hold a ticket on the winner in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake.

The ticket will pay more than $140,000, but Kirk had sold a half interest in it for £850 sterling, playing safe when he received a cable offer.

The money will come in handy for Mr. Kirk. He is married and has four children and farming has not been a high-paying proposition in Manitoba the last few years. He was born in Manitoba and farms about two miles from here.

"I have never been lucky before," said Kirk. "But my wife tells me I was lucky to get married."

MONTREAL GETS $76,000

Montreal, Oct. 25.—J. P. Ambrose, investigator in the freight claims department of the Canadian Pacific Railway here, still has about $76,000 richer as a result of the running of the Cambridgebridge Stakes in Newmarket, England, to-day. Ambrose held a ticket on Denbigh in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake and the horse finished second.

"I do not see why anyone should be the least bit interested," Ambrose said. "I am very glad I won the money, but that's all."

Ambrose is a single man of middle age who lives with his sister. His parents are dead.

Pact Covers 1934; Plan Laid Before NRA Chief For Approval

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Washington, Oct. 25.—Hugh Johnston, NRA administrator, to-day had before him for approval an international agreement between Canadian and United States newspaper manufacturers, calling for the holding of prices to a minimum amounting to a net delivered figure of $40 a ton through 1934.

The agreement was reached at a conference yesterday evening and submitted to Johnston to-day.

The agreement also states no price shall be fixed for deliveries after 1934, and no 1934 prices shall be fixed unless accompanied by provision for increases on April 1, July and October of next year if these are found to be necessary to come in line with prevailing contract market prices at those times.

WILL CARRY ON SAYS ELLIOTT

"The news of Mr. Bowser's sudden death comes as such a shock to us that I don't know what can be said," was the statement of Fred C. Elliott, who was manager of Mr. Bowser's campaign here and who has been one of those most closely associated with him during the political manoeuvres recently.

"All we can say now is that, coming at this moment when Mr. Bowser, despite his years and infirmity, was putting up such a courageous fight is tragedy in its severest form," Mr. Elliott said. "We will carry on through the election, as we know he would wish us to do."

The news came as a shock to political circles all over the province, coming as it does at the moment when the provincial political campaign, in which he was a leading participant, is at its height.

During the last few months, Mr. Bowser, after seven years of retirement had returned to the political arena, and has been waging a strenuous political campaign as head of the Non-Partisan Group in the provincial general election.

SPOKE HERE THURSDAY

Mr. Bowser's last appearance here was last Thursday evening, when at the Chamber of Commerce he opened his speaking campaign in Victoria. On that occasion the audience of nearly 800 persons, despite the high political tension, gave him a sympathetic hearing, and there was a pronounced feeling of admiration for the old gentleman, who had returned to the political fight. Even his bitterest political enemies of years ago, by paid tribute to the pluck and courage of the old fighter, which stirred a strong feeling of sympathy in the hearts of the large crowd for the spirit of the man who was overcoming physical weakness to bring back to the political platform the voice and its challenge which had rung forth on the hustings a generation ago.

Since he decided to re-enter the political field a few months ago, Mr. Bowser threw himself into the fight with all the vigor he could muster. With Dr. G. A. B. Hall and Dugald Donaghy, K.C., two of his chief lieutenants.

Arms Conference Session December 4

Committee Makes Recommendation at Geneva; German Proposals May Include Her Return to League

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 23.—The steering committee recommended to-day the Disarmament Conference should be adjourned until December 4 as reports circulated Germany would submit proposals under which she could return to the conference and the League of Nations.

These reports, originating in German circles, said the Reich's position would be set forth after the election of November 12, called for when the nation's intention to withdraw from both assemblies was announced.

Another meeting of the steering committee will be held to-morrow, after the session of the conference which will pass on the recommendation made to-day.

The committee expects to make suggestions as to the best way to carry on the work during the recess, either by private conversations or by the efforts of a special committee.

Havana, Oct. 25.—Bombs disturbed Havana yesterday evening and to-day. Two exploded under street cars, causing slight damage but injuring no one, and one was hurled in the headquarters of a negro society.

Still another went off in the hand of a young Spaniard, Urban Bonnes Betancourt, twenty-four, injuring him seriously.

Benancourt said he had found the bomb. Police claimed they had evidence he was a Communist.

Meanwhile, the government asserted it had broken the back of opposition movements to precipitate a general strike.

Telephoned His Doctor From Hotel Vancouver Early This Morning and Heart Specialists Called; Rallied at Noon, But Passed Away at 1.30

Had Served as Premier as Well as Filling Many Other Government Posts; Was to Have Been Candidate Both Here and in Vancouver

W. J. Bowser, K.C., former Premier of British Columbia, known as the "old war-horse of B.C. politics," and admired by opponents of all parties as a grand fighter, died suddenly in the Hotel Vancouver, at 1.30 o'clock this afternoon. He had suffered a heart attack early this morning.

Two days ago he complained that he had suffered an attack of indigestion. This morning at about 2 o'clock, from his hotel room he telephoned to his old-time medical and political friend, Dr. F. P. Patterson. Mr. Bowser then believed he had an attack of indigestion. The symptoms he described over the telephone led Mr. Patterson to call Dr. Barnhill to his immediate assistance. He was suffering from a heart seizure akin to angina pectoris.

During this morning Mr. Bowser replied a bit and seemed quite comfortable. Dr. Gillies and Dr. Lytle Hodgins, heart specialists, were called in and by noon their patient was making fair progress. Shortly after noon he began to sink again and at 1.30 he passed quietly away.

Germany Moves With Its Leader

Canadian Writer Says Two-thirds of Germany Follows Leader Willingly

First of Series of Articles on Conditions in Central Europe

Editors Note.—This is the first of a series of articles by M. H. Halton, special correspondent of The Star, Newspaper Service of Toronto, who is making an extended tour of Germany.

By M. H. HALTON
Copyright 1933, by Star Newspaper Service

Berlin, Oct. 25.—In the German towns and cities, through which I am wandering, everything on the surface is sunshine, energy, resurgence. But behind the scenes is one of the most fateful and remarkable stories of modern times.

Go back to 1923. The scene is Munich. Two men—Adolf Hitler, melodramatic demagogue with a ferocious scowl, and Hermann Goering, handsome he-man flying ace of the war—come together in a Munich night club, their inner beings consumed by the fire of an idea. Hitler stands on a table and announces a coup d'etat to his handful of cheering followers. As he harangues he is probably thinking of Camille Desmoulins and 1793.

That was the famous "Munich putsch." It was a ridiculous failure. The police raided the cellar. Hitler and Goering went on trial at Leipzig. Germany and the whole world laughed at the adventurers. At the trial Hitler shouted: "One day heads will roll for this!"

And they have rolled, literally. The heads of the Kaiser, the Kaiser himself, are rolling in the sand almost every day, after brief interviews with axemen in evening dress.

At the time of the putsch the movement had 3,000 followers throughout Germany. In 1925, when Hitler came out of prison, it had 27,000 members; 1926, 49,000; 1927, 72,000; 1928, 108,000; 1929, 178,000; 1930, when the economic blizzard bore down at its worst on Germany, 399,000.

GAINED POWER RAPIDLY

The world was still laughing at this vain little "megalomaniac" inspired by hate of the Jews and confidence in the God-ordained superiority of the German peoples. The world laughed, but in the election of 1931 the movement pulled 920,000 votes.

One day at the end of January this year, when intellectual and liberal and progressive Germans were still saying it was quite impossible that Hitler, a soldier at the front, the built-up Reich, I called in at Hitler's headquarters off the Wilhelmstrasse. Said his young friend and secretary, Fischer: "You mark my words in three days Hitler will be Chancellor."

I didn't believe him. I didn't even cable a story to the paper about it. I went back to England the next day. Three days later Hitler was Chancellor. A little later dictator of Germany. A month later the burning of the Reichstag building was the signal for the beginning of the revolution that has shaken Germany and will one day shake the world. The man who was once a penniless worker and then a soldier at the front, the built-up Reich, the greatest political organization in history in thirteen years; and his equipment.

We Advocate A Revision of the System of Provincial Taxation

RECOGNIZING that taxes on property in municipalities has reached a limit beyond which it amounts to property confiscation... we advocate a complete revision of provincial taxation and expenditures.

We believe that a lighter burden should be placed on those least able to pay, and that a more equitable share of the load should be carried by those in a position to do so.

If you agree with this viewpoint, cast your ballot on November 2 for the Non-Partisan candidates.

NOISY LONDON CAMPAIGN ENDS

By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 25.—Disarmament has proved a knotty issue in the East. The campaign by-election, in which polling took place today, the by-election in the most widely spread test of popular opinion since the general election.

Poling today ended a turbulent campaign which wound up yesterday evening in demonstrations outside the Fulham Town Hall, where Captain A. Duff-Cooper, Financial Secretary to the War Office, was speaking on behalf of Alderman W. J. Alderson, National Conservative candidate. The only other candidate is John Wilmut, Labor.

Munited police were forced to disperse the crowd which stormed the hall in a riotous scene during which number of stench bombs were thrown, apparently by both factions.

The Conservative candidate is a strong opponent of any further naval disarmament by Great Britain. In the continual din at the meeting, Captain Duff-Cooper was asked if Britain were prepared to abolish bombing airplanes.

Frankly do not believe the way to peace is in merely riding ourselves of a particular article of war, the War Office official replied.

There was a continual uproar and only those near the platform could hear the speaker.

STORM CUT OFF MONTREAL POWER FOR SHORT TIME

Wire Connections Restored, But Employees of Many Factories Idle While Linemen Rush Repairs; Ontario and Quebec Have First Winter Storm; Prairie People See Mercury Fall

Canadian Press
Montreal, Oct. 25.—In its most complete electric power failure in years, Montreal was cut off from the world for an hour to-day. Following a heavy overnight snowstorm, the first of the winter season, all communications failed.

Telephone and telegraph lines were gradually restored, but major power facilities were interrupted and many factories were idle. Lighting circuits were put back into commission through use of auxiliary equipment, but no power was available for heavier machinery. Employees stood about idle.

Heavy electrical standards were damaged when the weight of snow broke down hundreds of wires. Linemen worked at top speed repairing broken lines.

Hospitals equipped with auxiliary electrical generating apparatus for lighting and operating room use were able to carry on, but many theatres and hotels were handicapped.

STORMS WIDESPREAD
Toronto, Oct. 25.—A winter whistled across the east and west to-day, pelting Ontario, Quebec and parts of the prairies with snow and lowering temperatures below the freezing point. It was bitterly cold in scores of Canadian cities.

Power and telegraph lines were broken in the Ottawa and Montreal districts where seven-inch-deep snow tied up motor traffic in some places. Toronto people brought out winter overcoats as a freezing wind blew up from Lake Ontario. Snow was snow in scores of Ontario districts.

Heavy snowfall yesterday and during the night disrupted motor, river and canal traffic at Montreal, shipping on the St. Lawrence River either stopped or moved cautiously during the snowstorm—earliest of the season in Montreal since 1925.

The prairies experienced far colder weather than the east, Saskatchewan and Prince Albert in Saskatchewan, reporting overnight low temperatures of 12 degrees. It was also 12 at Brandon, Man.; 20 at Winnipeg, 16 at Calgary and 18 at Edmonton.

When Montreal's hydro power system failed to-day, the city was out of touch by telegraph with points east of Ganouque, Ont. Toronto was completely out of touch with Montreal by telegraph as wires that were available could not be used with Montreal's power tie-up.

Mr. Mackenzie took a morning train at some of the members and former members of the Dominion Government.

R. W. Bruhn was described as one of the adventurers who had betrayed and crucified the Conservative Party, and as the Salmon Arm chameleon who could change his color every day.

Hon. J. W. Jones was referred to as Jimmy Jones, the Independent who still hangs on to his salary. "He is the biggest example of political indecency in the group of leaders," Justice and lost Independents," said the speaker.

Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe was classed as the chief gragger of the Tories administration and W. J. Bowser as a man going around with a complacent smile on his face trying to look like an Independent.

The speaker did not entirely spare his own party. It was not enough to rest on its record of achievement, he commented. "Liberals needed men of advanced thought to wake it up," he said. The war crisis of yesterday was not sufficient for the problems of to-day.

RETURN TO DECENCY
"When you look back at the Tories administration for the last five years a Liberal administration would be a heaven-inspired gift for British Columbia," said the speaker. It would be a return to decency and honesty, he said. Many Conservatives whose party had been betrayed were rallying to the support of the Liberal Party and its assistant leader, the Hon. J. W. Jones.

The Liberal Government's record of achievement was described as being equalled in any part of the British Empire," the speaker declared, after referring to the Tories' Compensation, Old Age Pension and other acts.

Turning to economic problems, Capt. Mackenzie remarked that much in the British Columbia Liberal platform rested on a national basis. The control of currency and credit and the issuing of notes must be taken out of the hands of the monetary monopolists, bank and invested in a national central bank so that public credit could be used for the people of Canada instead of for private gain for the biggest monopoly in the Dominion.

The speaker recalled he was one of the first to call for a national fact-finding commission. Three years later they got the banking commission, but it was not the commission, representative of all sections of the community which he desired.

CENTRAL NATIONAL BANK
"You will get a national bank from that commission," he remarked, "but not the national bank the Liberals are calling for. You will get a bankers' national bank. Entrenched interests will fight against a national central bank controlled by the people."

A national central bank affected every plank in the Liberal platform. Capt. Mackenzie continued. Conversion loans had helped the financial situation a little, but not enough, and they should be made to pay their proportionate share of the country's obligations. He instanced the Australian policy on conversion loans. That country, which two years ago was on the brink of financial disaster, had been able to cut its charges until now it was able to present a budget with a surplus.

The Liberal Party stood for the essential recasting of the financial structure of Canada. It stood for political liberty, personal liberty and religious liberty. Canada was to-day suffering from a blatant nationalistic policy, a stifling economic policy that was keeping its people in bondage. The advantage of a few favored highly-protected industries. It must release those prohibitions which were damming trade.

"SKIPPER TOLMIE"
Turning to British Columbia affairs, Capt. Mackenzie drew a picture of "Skipper Tolmie," deserted by his colleagues and left at the wheel of the sinking ship. He referred to the formation of the independent group and told how Mr. Bowser first attacked Mr. Bruhn and how they afterwards met at a "little inn in Vancouver, and lying down together like the lion and the lamb, drafted a programme between them for all the Independents without consulting the rest of them."

Reginald Hayward, independent candidate for Victoria, came in for comment. Capt. Mackenzie recalling Mr. Patten's no confidence motion in the government brought before the B.C. Legislature last session, Mr. Hayward voted against it then, but now came out and said the Tolmie Government was incapable of administering the affairs of the province.

THE C.C.F.
Turning to the C.C.F., the speaker quoted from speeches of its leader, J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., to show that Mr. Woodsworth had classified its platform as straight Socialism.

"And there is a red thread of continuing violence running through every stitch of it," commented the speaker, and proceeded to quote further from a speech of Mr. Woodsworth in which the C.C.F. leader said he was not so shocked as some people might be by the suggestion of force, as nations used force against each other. It was necessary for one class to use force against another.

In Victoria, he pointed out, the C.C.F. first phoned its candidates and then adopted its platform. Interference by the Council of Twelve marked the selection of candidates. The council could reject any candidate it did not approve, and the candidates had to be responsible to their party.

The C.C.F. got its answer in the Saskatchewan by-election, the vote for the Liberal candidate was for good and clean government."

MURDERS AND SUICIDE
Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 25. (Associated Press).—Three members of a family were found dead in their home here to-day by police. They believe the father, Henry R. Kent, fifty-eight, shot his wife, Mary, fifty-five, and their son, Clayton, twenty-one, and then killed himself.

NON-STOP WORLD FLIGHT PLANNED

Greensboro, N.C., Oct. 25.—Non-stop solo airplane flight around the world in three and a half days is planned by Captain Bennett Griffin. Griffin said United States army and navy officials were co-operating with him in construction of a plane to make the non-stop attempt, probably next May or June.

By Wiley Post, Griffin explained he planned to refuel in the air and get sleep by using a form of automatic pilot.

MORE LIGHT ON CUBAN BONDS

Associated Press
Washington, Oct. 25.—Evidence was presented to the United States senate investigators to-day that, faced with financial difficulties in Cuba in 1930, the Chase National Bank sold $40,000,000 in bonds to the public to retire the island republic's obligations to the bank.

This followed an earlier statement by Chase Bank officials before the senate stock market committee that in retiring $50,000,000 in Cuban serial certificates, bankers who held $30,000,000 worth were paid off before the public, which held the remainder, although the bank's holdings had later maturity dates.

Proceeds of the bond issue were used to retire $40,000,000 of serial certificates. Those involved were Chase, Blair and Company, the Equitable Trust Company and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

Committee Counsel Ferdinand Pecora termed the negotiations a plan to unload on the public, but Shepard Morgan, vice-president of Chase, believed the public would have bought the certificates even if informed of conditions in Cuba.

But under the plan finally adopted, Pecora said, "The one that paid the freight was the public."

Washington, Oct. 25.—Senate investigators were told to-day the Chase National Bank and its associate in Cuban financing, Blair and Company, were to participate in profits from the Cuban building programme under an arrangement with one of the bidding contractors.

tenants, he made a speaking tour of the interior of the province during the summer. This tour was evidently carried out at the cost of quite a severe physical strain.

Since his retirement from active politics, following the choosing of Hon. S. F. Tolmie as provincial Conservative leader at the Kamloops convention of 1926, Mr. Bowser had lived quietly at his beautiful home, "Buncrana," high up on the Rockland Avenue hill, overlooking Oak Bay district, and the Straits of Juan de Fuca. Although he assumed public appearances, up until a year ago, Mr. Bowser, however, maintained an active interest in public affairs. He retained the support of a large faction of the Conservative party, which manifested personal attachment to its old chief which could not be broken by incidents such as occurred at Kamloops.

MEETS PREMIER
Just a year ago this month, Mr. Bowser emerged from retirement when on the invitation of Premier Tolmie to join with him and T. D. Pattullo, Liberal leader, in the formation of a Union Government, he went to Premier Tolmie's home at Cloverdale. There the two who had been opponents at Kamloops had their first meeting as partners in the government.

They talked for some twenty minutes, at the end of which Mr. Bowser emerged to announce that he had declined to associate himself with the Government move. It was considered as a tribute to the strength which Mr. Bowser still held in the country, that although he was not in office and had no party standing, the Premier of the province recognized him as still such a factor as to make it necessary that he should be invited to participate in the new government move.

BORN IN NEW BRUNSWICK
He was born at Rexton, New Brunswick, on December 3, 1867. He obtained his early education in the public schools of his native section and continued his studies at Mount Allison Academy, Sackville, N.B. Subsequently, he pursued a two years' course in arts at Dalhousie University, at Halifax, N.S., and then entered a law department of that institution, graduating with the degree of LL.B. in 1890, and being admitted to the bar of New Brunswick. In 1891 he went to Vancouver, and in the same year was admitted to practice, immediately becoming identified with the profession as a member of the firm of Bowser and Lavell.

The concern afterward became known as Bowser, Godfrey and Christie, being changed subsequently to Bowser, Reid and Wallbridge.

It did not take the young Dalhousie student long to become a force in the early politics of British Columbia. Arriving in Vancouver in 1891, he boarded a stage coach in Vancouver and journeyed to New Westminster with Aubrey Morrison, now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. There, before Judge McCreight, who had been the first premier of British Columbia after Confederation, Mr. Bowser was accepted as a member of the British Columbia bar.

POLITICAL CAREER STARTED
At the same time he plunged into the hectic politics which made public life so interesting in those times. Already he had schooled himself for a political career at Dalhousie, where he was the first freshman ever to be "prime minister" in the mock parliament. The leader of the opposition was a young fellow named "Richard McBride." When Mr. Bowser heard that McBride was in New Westminster, he wrote him—the stage coach journey from Vancouver being too expensive—and suggested that, together, they could do much in real politics. McBride eagerly accepted, and thus began a partnership of many years, and the basis of a government which endured from 1903 to 1916.

Few statesmen established a more notable record for continuity of service in British Columbia than Mr. Bowser. He was first elected to the provincial Legislature in 1897. He played a strong role, first as aggressive private member representing Vancouver, then as Attorney-General, Minister of Finance and Commissioner of Fisheries, as Premier, and, finally, as leader of the Conservative Opposition.

INSTRUMENTAL IN PARTY WORK
In 1907 he was made a member of Sir Richard McBride's Cabinet as Attorney-General, and it was largely due to Mr. Bowser's advice that Premier McBride threw off the cloak of coalition and declared for party government.

During the long period of Conservative administration Mr. Bowser was repeatedly re-elected by his constituency in Vancouver and on more than one occasion he headed the poll. In 1909 and 1910 he served as Minister of Finance.

As Attorney-General, he initiated the first motor traffic legislation adopted in British Columbia, and his attempts towards control of the liquor traffic were made at this time. Under the law which he introduced, hours maintained by liquor selling establishments were curtailed, roadhouses were ordered closed on Sundays and saloon licenses were limited to hostilities with thirty or more rooms. He sponsored the Liquor Traffic Act of 1915.

Mr. Bowser's tenure as Premier was brief. Upon dissolution of the McBride ministry on December 18, 1915, he was entrusted by Lieutenant-Governor F. S. Barnard with the duty of forming a new cabinet, and he held office as Premier until the defeat of the Conservative Party at the polls in the general election of September, 1916.

ATTACKED P.G.E.
In succeeding sessions of the Legislature, as Leader of the Opposition, he was the hottest critic of the administration of Premier John Oliver, attacking the government's Pacific Great Eastern Railway policy, its financial policy and its method of administering the British Columbia Liquor Act.

Opposed to Oriental competition in the industry of the province, Mr. Bowser ordered revocation during the 1922 session urging the Federal Government not to enter any international treaties with Asiatic countries without first obtaining the consent of the British Columbia Legislature. This resolution was replaced by a government resolution asking for absolute exclusion of Orientals and prohibition of Orientals from acquiring industrial rights with in the province, and Mr. Bowser supported the measure.

Mr. Bowser, defeated as a candidate in Vancouver in the general election on June 20, 1924, retired from political life August 9, 1924, on which day H. E. Pooley was chosen by the M.P.'s-elect as House leader of the Conservative Opposition.

He again appeared in the public arena, however. At the convention of the British Columbia Conservative Party held at Kamloops in November, 1926, to choose a permanent leader of the party, Mr. H. Pooley being only temporary House leader, Mr. Bowser was a candidate for the post. When he found the delegates were almost equally divided between him and Leon J. Ladner, then M.P.-elect for South Vancouver, and that he would have to work with a divided party if chosen, he withdrew as a candidate for the leadership, thus definitely dropping from public life. Dr. S. F. Tolmie was selected as Conservative leader.

In March of this year, following repeated requests from his former followers, who strongly advocated his entering political life, Mr. Bowser took over the leadership of the Non-partisan movement. Later he agreed to enter with R. W. Bruhn and other Independents in the Non-partisan group.

On September 9, 1926, he married Miss Florida Dobson of Vancouver, who predeceased him in July, 1928.

Mr. Bowser was a member of the Union Club, Victoria; of the Vancouver Club and the Hotel, Lodge, A.F. and A.M. He attained his thirty-second degree through Scottish Rite and in 1904 was elected grandmaster for British Columbia. He belonged to the Presbyterian Church. He had resided for many years at "Buncrana," Terrace Avenue.

Centre Near Pasadena; Burglar Alarms at Glendale
Set Off

Associated Press
Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—The foothills section surrounding Los Angeles on the north and east was jarred sharply by an earthquake at 11 o'clock last night. The shock was felt to a lesser degree in the metropolitan district of Los Angeles.

No injury and practically no damage was reported.

Dr. Harry Wood of the seismological laboratory of the Carnegie Institute at Pasadena reported the epicentre of the quake was near Pasadena. That city, Glendale and Burbank reported having felt the quake strongly.

In Glendale, canned goods were tumbled from store shelves and scores of burglar alarms were set off. In Bell, southeast of Los Angeles, the police station walls were cracked. Long Beach, centre of the March 10 tremor, was not affected.

Dr. Wood reported the shock was considerably less violent than the one October 2, which resulted in light damage in Los Angeles. Scientists believe last night's quake was an earth-quake shock following the March quake.

Propaganda Fills Germany On Eve of Hitler Plebiscite

Radio, Papers, Placards and Shows Drum in Idea of "Equal Rights," Says Traveling Canadian Press Correspondent

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Freiburg, Germany, Oct. 25.—Propaganda is rolling over Germany in an endless tide, said it in all one way. Radio, newspapers, placards, demonstrations all clamor Chancellor Adolf Hitler's battle for "peace with honor and equal rights."

As the campaign goes on for the plebiscite and election, November 12, announced when Germany withdrew from the Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations, "one people, one Reich, one will" is the continuous refrain. And no voice is raised in effective challenge.

One hears occasional criticism, especially among the older people—criticism not of the desire for peace, which everybody wants, but of the burning taxes or of the ironing out of independent opinion, of the infinite propaganda. But the criticism is only individual. The old parties are dissolved and play no open part in the campaign. It is unlikely they will even have a candidate.

ONLY ONE PARTY
The issue lies not so much in the Reichstag election, where only one party is permitted to run, in the plebiscite, for which 44,000,000 green ballot papers will shortly be distributed throughout the Reich. On these, the elector will simply vote "Yes" or "No" to the question whether he is willing solemnly to accept the government's policy as an expression of his own conception and will.

Peace is the focal point in this vast propaganda. The electors are told how Germany has not only honorably observed the disarmament terms on the Treaty of Versailles, but is willing to scrap her remaining armaments provided other countries are ready to do the same.

"Die Front" has an exhibition on the Unter Den Linden, where a full-size wooden reproduction of a "Big Bertha" is on view. With the aid of model ships and diagrams a lecturer tells how the British Grand Fleet received such a blow at Jutland it took care never to meet the German High Seas Fleet again.

A Great War handbook selling there tells how the German fleet, although suffering heavy losses, won a complete victory at Jutland and once and for all destroyed the legend of England's invincibility at sea. There is one old war poster telling Germany if she still has to fight on, if she is to go short of food, her chief enemy is England.

But the dominant feature of this exhibition is that Germany is defenceless to-day. Large diagrams show how despite the promise in the League of Nations covenant the victorious powers have maintained huge armaments.

BIG MAPS DISPLAYED
Large scale maps show Germany threatened by marching battalions from France, Poland and Czechoslovakia; how she is menaced from air and sea.

An illustration running around the Nazi press gives the peace and war strengths of "the world's armament madness." The Irish Free State is included with a peace strength of 14,927. But the Free State's war strength is unkindly represented by a question mark.

And the faithful are conjured to forsake none of this propaganda. A circular issued by the Nazi radio section advises all those who have not radio receivers to instal them, that every German home may demonstrate its unity with Hitler and his fellow-campaigners in the fight.

HITLER SPEAKS IN CAMPAIGN

Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 25.—The only nation which continues to live in the long run, Chancellor Adolf Hitler said in a campaign speech yesterday evening, "are those which are willing to sacrifice their lives for honor."

The Chancellor, again emphasizing Germany's demand for equality, was making the first Reichstag campaign speech in the capital in preparation for the November 12 election.

"Germany entered the war against her will and ended the fight honorably relying on the promises of President Wilson," the speaker said.

"It was a question of being or not being, and the Treaty of Versailles showed how necessary it was for us to defend our very existence."

"None of us imagined," Hitler continued, "a lost war would cause us no deprivation, because we were not guilty. The victor, however, cannot claim the moral right forever to brand the vanquished as the inferior."

Chancellor Hitler enlarged on a statement there was a threat of Bolshevism to a beaten nation after the war which should not have been ignored by the rest of Europe.

The Versailles peace cannot be grasped by a man's common sense," the Chancellor added. "To me, certainly it is simply incomprehensible."

Chancellor Hitler then went into a long arraignment of reparations, which he said were "imposed without providing the conditions for meeting them."

"HATRED AND DESPAIR"
The Chancellor declared "the Versailles peace, instead of bringing happiness, plunged the world into the deepest misery of hatred and despair."

"We almost suicidally scrapped armaments. We had one of the greatest armies in the world, yet we completely disarmed."

"It was mutual distrust of our victors which compelled them to disarm. It is not true other states fear us—that would be too much honor."

The Chancellor then poured bitter irony on the French armaments, saying, "They certainly are not directed solely against our fire departments, storm troops and such."

TASK OF NAZIS
"We undertook a task on January 30 such as few generations ever undertook. We found ruin everywhere. It took courage, boundless confidence," he said.

"Marxism was ruining the country, including the workers, and we fought it successfully."

"We likewise conducted a war on class war and fought for restoration of faith in the nation and confidence in our administration and justice."

"We have rooted out Godlessness. We have brought preachers back to churches where they belong, instead of letting them waste time in party politics."

"What are the fifty victims of our revolution compared with the 20,000 who committed suicide because of Versailles?" Hitler asked.

"Where was there ever a revolution so free of atrocities as ours?"

"Look at the Irish capital. Look at the atrocities of the French Revolution."

HAWAII FACES FINANCE CRISIS

Associated Press
Honolulu, Oct. 25.—With the treasury empty and unable to meet October obligations, including the payroll of 1,500 employees, finances of the territory of Hawaii have reached a definite impasse. The Bank of Hawaii and the Bishop First National Bank yesterday refused the request of Governor Lawrence M. Judd for a loan of approximately $1,200,000 for October expenses.

Meanwhile, Governor Judd said he had a plan in mind which would not require tax increases before the end of the year. He said he expected to call a special session of the Legislature soon.

WIDER TAX BASIS URGED

Vancouver, Oct. 25.—Vancouver's long-standing fight for a more equitable basis of taxation on privately leased property on the Burrard Inlet waterfront will again be carried to the Legislature at its next session.

This was decided by the special civic committee on proposed charter amendments, which met yesterday at the City Hall. Besides the crown land taxation question the only other proposed amendment passed by the committee was that authority be obtained to extend for two years the redemption period on property sold at the tax sale in November. The usual redemption period of one year was extended to two years at the last session of the House, but such an arrangement must be made annually.

In again applying for the right to tax alienated crown lands at their full value, instead of at the leasehold value, the city is acting with the consent of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. City Solicitor J. B. Williams obtained the Premier's approval in an interview at Calgary a few days ago.

Mr. Williams made it clear the city is not seeking the right to tax property of the Harbor Board, but only property leased to and used by private interests for private purposes. At present, the city can tax only the amount of the leasehold, but wishes to tax such leaseholders as if they were actual owners.

Germany Prepares for War, Says Calgarian

Calgary, Oct. 25.—"There is every sign Germany is preparing for war," declares Magistrate H. G. Scott of Calgary, just returned home following a three-month tour of Europe. Germany, he says, remains being placed in an inferior position.

The light comes from oxygen, and not, as astronomers once widely believed, from some chemical element unknown on earth.

MANY AUSTRIANS AT CAMPS IN GERMANY

More Than 7,000 Nazis Have Left Country Ruled By Dollfuss Government

By Louis F. Lochner, Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 25.—More than 7,000 Austrians for whom their native country became unbearable have taken refuge in Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Third Reich, according to figures compiled in the Foreign Office and in the Austrian section of the Nazi foreign department.

These refugees include four Austrian officers who crossed the border in full uniform, fifty privates who deserted similarly, hundreds of former officers and privates discharged for being politically unpatriotic, and thousands of Austrian Nazis, wanted by Austrian police for allegedly subversive activities.

Theodor Habicht, Chancellor Hitler's inspector-general for Austria, departed from the German legation at Vienna under dramatic circumstances, has provided shelter for these exiles in a refugee camp near Lechfeld, on the Bavarian frontier, it was said at Nazi headquarters.

ARE DRILLING
"To prevent these men from becoming public charges in German cities," a spokesman related, "we put them in labor camps, where they are usefully employed at road building, land improvement and similar pursuits."

"Naturally, they indulge in daily setting-up exercises and there is discipline as in an army, but that does not mean—as has been wrongly said—we are drilling a so-called Austrian legion."

"Chancellor Hitler has no thought of interfering with Austria by force of arms."

RELIEF COSTS DECREASE
Vancouver, Oct. 25. (Canadian Press).—Vancouver's relief total dropped slightly during the two weeks ended October 18. Cases on city relief fell from 7,900 to 7,857. Total relief cost for the fortnight, the relief committee was informed, was $5,000 less than for the corresponding period of 1932.

ONTARIO HENS LEAD IN CONTESTS

Egg-laying Competition Results at Ottawa Experimental Farm Are Announced

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Oct. 25.—Important egg-laying contests stretching over fifty-one weeks have just concluded at the Central Experimental Farm here. A Dominion-wide contest for which hens from one end of Canada to the other were sent to the capital, had 179 birds which qualified for registration. Another contest was for Ontario alone, and 413 birds qualified.

In the Dominion contest the winning pen of ten white Leghorns was owned by Manor Farm, Clarkson, Ont. Then-pen laid 2,315 eggs and won 2,646.9 points. The size of the eggs is taken into consideration in awarding the points.

The second pen, owned by the Hollywood Poultry Farm of Woodville, Washington, U.S., was also of the white Leghorn breed, laying 2,328 eggs with 2618.2 points.

The third pen, W. S. Hall, Oakville, Ont., white Leghorns, 2,398 eggs, and 2,858 points.

In the Canadian contest for individual birds some good scoring took place, and the birds which were winners had particularly high egg weight, the result of careful breeding with registered stock. The first place was won by Mrs. C. H. Moore of Dundas, Ont., with a Rhode Island Red bird, No. 294. She laid 277 eggs with 3,233.5 points, and finished the year in good condition and laying strong.

The second bird was owned by A. J. Urquhart, Greenfield, Ont., and the third by the Manor Farm, Clarkson, Ont.

STABILITY VERSUS CONFUSION

Orderly, experienced and competent government under the leadership of Mr. Pattullo versus "confusion worse confounded." Reduced to simple terms, this is the issue which confronts the electorate of British Columbia in the present election campaign. There are, in fact, only two parties or groups in the field which possess the all-important qualification of leadership. One is the party headed by Mr. Pattullo, which is contesting every constituency in the province, and the other is the Unionist element led by Hon. Simon Tolmie, which is represented in only a dozen seats and which, therefore, is out of the running. None of the other parties or groups has any authorized leader.

The Independents have been unable to make up their minds among their aspirants for leadership they should select, while the C.C.F. so far has been dominated by a Committee of Twelve, a device which is rather familiar to students of revolutionary movements. As the leader of a party is a potential Prime Minister, or managing director of the province's affairs and, therefore, is the most important plank of any party's platform, the failure of most of the groups to enlighten the electors on this vital feature of their policies is a reflection upon the public intelligence. Anybody can build a political platform; the real question is, who is going to put it into operation? The time to decide that issue is before—not after—an election.

Conservative voters are without any party ties in this election. Many of them are supporting the candidates who acknowledge the leadership of Mr. Pattullo because they feel that in the election of a majority of his followers to the Legislature lies the only assurance of stable government without which British Columbia's recovery from the depression must be delayed. They know that the alternative would be a scramble among a lot of independents for office, or an attempt to impose upon the province a collection of fantastic theories which would do the country irreparable harm. Government is not a paper proposition. In British Columbia it is strictly subject to conditions prescribed largely by the constitution of Canada, of which this province is a relatively small proportion. This is no time for uncertainty or rash experiments, particularly in view of the favorable reports of gradually improving economic conditions elsewhere.

If the electors want something definite and responsible in the way of government they should vote for all of the Liberal candidates. In the present circumstances split ballots merely would contribute to the prospects of administrative confusion from which every industry and interest in the province would suffer. Incidentally, it is worth mentioning that every one of the six candidates who are running under Liberal auspices in Victoria and vicinity has spent, if not his entire life, many years of it in the district, and is conscientiously determined to do his utmost in promoting the public interest.

STEP UP, YE WHITE SHIRTS!

An eastern contemporary discusses literature issued by "The National State Party of Canada" which calls for "100,000 White Shirts." We are not told whether the shirt is to be of special pattern or of material of a distinctive texture. But one hundred thousand at, say, a dollar apiece would net $100,000. Each wearer of one of these shirts, moreover, must supply himself with an enamel badge at a cost of fifteen cents. Here is a return of $15,000 if the full quota should be sold. What enterprising gentleman is behind this?

However, to put a deal like this over, the organization must have a programme with plenty of fire and brimstone in it. There is nothing novel in the first plank of the "White Shirt" platform. It wants a dictator who would make Hitler's dictating look like thoroughly representative government; and, of course, it stands for 100 per cent nationalism—White Shirt nationalism. Racial purity—sounds like Adolf—is one of its main watchwords, with disfranchisement in store for every non-Aryan in the Dominion. Nor does it believe in hiding its light under a bushel in the matter of its claims, for it modestly says, "The National State Party is the only party in the world to-day initiating an effective policy for ensuring peace and safeguarding the future generations from the follies of cowards and pessimists and the horrors of war." Here is a choice phrase from its manifesto:

Nationalism is the supreme power which lifts a nation above the contentions and egos of its individuals and factions. The physical and intellectual wealth of nations throughout history has been greatest at the pitch of their superiority in national consciousness. The decline of empires is due to the admixture of alien races preceding the onrush of conquest by the more virile invaders.

If the organization in question were to be taken seriously, which is not necessary, the author of the foregoing statements might be told that he is talking through his hat, that the record of history by no means supports his contention. But we suspect that the substance of this appeal for 100,000 "White Shirts" and 100,000 enamel emblems has a very intimate connection with the shirt-making and cheap jewelry trades. This, however, is an age of rackets, but this particular racket in Canada will last about as long as our Ku Klux Klan. And why not a purple shirt? Can it be that some enterprising individual is out for the laundry concession?

Incidentally, considering the frigidity of Canada's weather in winter it might be more practical to suggest the good old Hudson's Bay blanket in preference to a white shirt. A white shirt in frosty below zero would fail to preserve the warmth in the most super-heated nationalist breast.

AIR MYSTERY

A sequel to the crash of a passenger airplane in Indiana recently, in which seven lives were lost, takes the form of an announcement that the disaster was caused by a bomb which had been concealed somewhere in the machine before the take-off.

The intimation of this development came after portions of the wreckage had been submitted to tests by scientists at Northwestern University. How the explosive could have been planted in the plane to begin with seems to be a mystery; so great a mystery indeed that the superintendent of the last airport at which the liner called asserts flatly that no explosives conceivable could have been smuggled into the plane at that point.

This tragic incident suggests the necessity of careful inspection of personal belongings about which there might reasonably be some suspicion. For example, the would-be suicide who would hesitate at performing some gruesome operation on himself might choose some form of violent action in mid-air, irrespective of what might happen to other people as a result of such action.

It is difficult to conceive of a mentality which would permit the deliberate placing of a bomb in an airplane for no other reason than one of sending its occupants to their doom. Warped minds, however, are an unknown quantity.

A DICTATOR'S SECURITY

The new order of the Hitler government controlling the newspapers gives you a pretty good idea of the way a dictatorship works to cut off all possible public criticism of its acts.

Under this order, all publications unreservedly must uphold the rightness of the Hitler regime. All pretense that they are organs of free opinion is dropped. They become, quite avowedly, propaganda mechanisms. Writers or editors who publish articles in defiance of this law can be sentenced to death.

To get a notion of the way such a law works, imagine it in operation in this country to-day. No newspaper and no writer in it would dare criticize any aspect of the government. No article intimating that there was the slightest defect in the programme ever could be printed.

NOW, NOW, MR. RHODES

When he took the platform last week in support of the candidature of the government standard-bearer in Restigouche-Madawaska, Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Dominion Minister of Finance, defended the Bennett tariff policy and challenged Mr. Mackenzie King's charge that this policy was strangling trade. The Minister also is reported to have said at Campbellton that "if the Liberal policy of lower tariffs closed outside markets to Canada, the Dominion did not want that policy."

The electors in the New Brunswick constituency, of course, spoke their minds in no uncertain manner in the ballot boxes on Monday. If Mr. Rhodes is able to interpret that verdict as anything but stern disapproval of the fiscal folly of the government of which he is a member, he is an optimist indeed.

It will be noted, however, that Mr. Rhodes said "if" the Liberal policy of lower tariffs closed outside markets to Canada, the Dominion did not want that kind of a policy. Mr. Rhodes surely must have had his tongue in his cheek when he used the word "if." He has only to refer to the statistics of Canada's external trade between 1922 and 1930 to obtain proof that not only did the policy of lower tariffs pursued by the King government not close markets to Canada but extended those outside markets until the value of our exports had reached to record total of $1,388,896,075, while our imports were worth $1,363,709,672—an aggregate trade of $2,654,575,166, or an increase of more than one billion under the tariff policies of the Liberal administration.

While it would not be fair to attribute a drop of more than $1,600,000,000 in Canada's trade since the peak year of the King government's accomplishments—latest figures available, twelve months ending last August, show the total as a little more than $876,000,000—the present administration at Ottawa can not escape the responsibility for strangling a very great deal of this business by its trade-restricting tariff policy.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

BLEEDING THE COUNTRY

The Calgary Herald

Ordinary sources of capital are rapidly drying up, chiefly for the reason that governments, federal, provincial and municipal, have not reduced the cost of their establishments to a scale commensurate with the ability of taxpayers to pay taxes. On top of this there is the serious drain of unemployment, relief out of public funds, on a per capita basis beyond that ever paid by any nation, past or present.

THE I. C. R.

The Halifax Herald

The status and integrity of the Intercolonial Railway are imbedded in the British North America Act, which is the Constitution of Canada. The Intercolonial Railway is named in that act, which is an imperial statute, and there never has been within Canada in any parliamentary or administrative sense authority to obliterate the identity of the I.C.R. or to alter its constitutional status one iota.

SENATOR MURDOCK'S STAND

The Le Nouvelliste, Three Rivers

The Railway "union, which is controlled in the United States, has through Senator Murdock overboard on the pretext that he was unable to block a second cut of ten per cent on the salaries of the men in the Brotherhood. . . . Did they think that he ought to have urged the men to strike? What good could this have done to the men he represented? The time is not propitious for such manoeuvres. When thousands and thousands of men in certain occupations have been out of jobs for months it is no time for those who are still in employment to risk everything on a matter of salaries. Murdock understood this, and this is why he preferred to accept the inevitable. Unfortunately, the radicals of the unions have never understood this sort of wisdom.

Loose Ends

You really don't know much about politics and life down there—or how they work these things up in this high north—where the politicians and the snow come in clouds—and winter comes at one stride.

By H. B. W.

STERNER STUFF

NOTHING, I suppose, could be more intelligent than the electorate of the great coast cities, unless it be my turtle, Hannibal, or the little boy next door. But really you don't know anything about politics down there; politics, I mean, of the sterner sort. You have to come up here to the High North to see this game as it should be played by an embattled electorate. Out here at the end of 500 miles of road, the Parliament Buildings are not a familiar pile of rock at the end of the Causeway, the government a bunch of fellows whom you can see on the street every day, and the future of British Columbia a dull commonplace. To them the Parliament Buildings are kind of magic castle, where dwells a hideous ogre, and men must rally forth to slay it with their good right hands.

To them the government, which seems harmless enough when seen in the process of being shaved down in the Diard barber shop and shined by dear old Posey (what would one give for dear old Posey to-day after tramping through the mud of Prince George's suburbs?) To them, I think, the Big Bad Wolf, constantly at the door, a nightmare by their beds at night, a living, breathing thing, though we know it to have died long since. In them the question of who gets in and who gets out just two weeks from tonight is a question which every man asks every other at least twice a day.

AS FOR a visitor from the Coast, he is instantly surrounded and required to tell the facts of the election in the big cities. With an eagerness which is truly pathetic these people will listen to even my primitive views on politics with open mouths and probably lie awake all night worrying about them. It is rather alarming to think that this election will be settled throughout the country ridges of this province by people who will listen to me, and actually believe what I tell them.

You should see how they fight elections up here. Why, your election in Victoria is a ladies' afternoon contract lesson compared with the gory battle of Prince George. They are out all day and all night, they talk most of the night, they dash around by car, by train, and even by airplane. You never know where you will run into them. Mr. Pattullo surges through the North. You run into Mr. Ian Mackenzie rushing from a meeting to catch the train out at 2 a.m. so that they may bring the holy tidings to Prince Rupert on the following night and time his speech to catch a boat south for Ocean Falls. Mr. Alex Manson speaks most of the night to the scattered hamlets of the Omicamea and drives all day. Mr. L. D. Taylor smokes his cigars and wears his ties and tries to persuade the electors of Omicamea that the mayor of Vancouver should represent them in the Legislature, to which the electors of Omicamea are reliably reported to have said, "You're telling us." In the more picturesque idiom of the High North.

Some high-minded lumberjacks east of here, stirred by an excess of patriotism, prepared a few nights ago to welcome a certain candidate with a case of ancient eggs, presented horizontally and with velocity, and had purchased the eggs, too, before the candidate's opponent managed to dissuade them from this obvious public duty.

Last night Harry Perry, the Liberal candidate, chopped fifteen trees out of the road between here and somewhere in order to get to a meeting, and just drove his car over the other ten with interesting results to the springs.

The C.C.F. scouts the country also, with the result that one homesteader told me he would be assured of a pension of $200 a month for life, along with all farmers of every sort, if that party were elected.

WINTER

THE COUNTRY is getting as hard and grim as the election—only 10 degrees above zero last night, and this morning you should see the frost on the grass beside the road, and hanging like a cloud of glistening spray on the bare, spindly branches of the poplar trees. It is the beginning of winter here, with just a faint trace of snow in the air, winter which will soon grip this country in an icy fist.

In fact, since the last paragraph it has gripped. A few miles west of Prince George we ran square into it, a driving snow already six inches deep and adding an inch an hour. All around this north land had suddenly turned from autumn into such a scene as you find on a Christmas card—spruce trees weighted down with billowing winds of snow, brush at the roadside sprinkled with little globes of ice, looking precisely like bits of cotton wool. Over everything lay this white, soft blanket of snow, the first of the year, the real beginning of winter.

IN THE RAW

AND IT IS real winter in the North, such as you read about. Across the road are the tracks of coyote and moose and deer. A coyote watches us from the road ahead, then hops into the brush, and we can see him peering from behind a tree as we drive by. A hawk swoops down on fifty yards off, pounces on a rabbit and flies away with annoyance at our approach. He will come back after we have gone to the kill, which lies in a little red patch in the snow. The rabbits are thick up here, and just turning white around the belly. Soon they will be the color of the snow. The legend is that during a Conservative regime at Victoria they became numerous so that the people may have sufficient to eat in lean, misgoverned times. The Liberals say they are beginning to get scarce now, a good omen for Liberal candidates.

Campaigning has suddenly become harder than ever, with cars sliding sideways on the snow and candidates suffering from physical as well as mental cold feet. Still they surge on, a couple of hundred miles a day. Still they talk most of the night. And still the people seem to like it. Since writing the last line I ran into Mr. Manson, the hardest campaigner in the North. He sweeps through the country like an avalanche and looks ten years younger on it than he did five years ago, when he was in the government down in your sort, effete Victoria.

"Alex," says a seasoned veteran, "can chew tobacco with these settlers over their farm fences—a priceless asset in this game. He's the only candidate who can. He won't have any trouble getting elected."

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELS

POOLS

The pool in the patio is round.
 And cool and very clear.
 The wind makes always a rustling sound
 Through the willow, bending near.
 A tiny trickle of water flows
 Down into the pool all day.
 And ever widening the grass grows
 And quivers and dies away.
 Reflected there in the quiet deeps
 Are the willows' waving boughs
 And a fir with white wings that sleeps
 Where the mellow sunbeams drowse.
 Still farther down, and back of all Things else imprisoned there,
 Far back of willow-tree and wall,
 The sky gleams, blue and fair.
 Within the still pool of your life
 Earth's changeful shadows lie.
 But back of every transient strife
 Shines heaven's tranquility!

Petria has placed an import quota on umbrellas.

SIDE GLANCES

"I think that's her last year's coat made over, but you would never guess it."

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
 OCTOBER 26, 1908
 (From The Times Files)

Not for years has there been so much interest manifested on polling day as there is to-day. The early days of the campaign, now nearing a close, were remarkably quiet. Within the last few days, however, excitement has reached fever heat, and to-day polling day has proved an intense one.

The Libble, the third sealing schooner to arrive home from the north, towed into the harbor yesterday afternoon and tied up at the wharf of the Victoria Sealing Company. She had a fairly successful hunt, taking a total of 850 skins during the season. The best catch was made early in the year off the coast of California, the hunting in Bering Sea being spoiled by the Japanese, who were able to approach near the islands and also to use guns.

The Boys went over to the Garrison grounds on Saturday, and won by two goals to one after a hard fight to avert defeat. The Garrison played a hard luck game throughout, and had they been a little stronger in their back line should have scored a win with two goals to spare.

To-morrow evening under the auspices of the Victoria Musical Society, Emilio de Gogorza, the great baritone, will appear at the Victoria Theatre.

The Princess Mary arrived from the north last evening carrying a number of passengers and a large quantity of gold dust, valued at a million and a quarter dollars.

NOTICE!

The Times will print no letters in this column more than 400 words in length.

These letters must be plainly written on one side of the paper only, and must be accompanied by the names and addresses of the writers, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

Letters will not be re-written for publication. If they are not legible no attempt will be made to read them.

Letters not used will not be returned to the writer.

These rules, which henceforth will be carried out absolutely, are designed as much for the protection of our patient readers as for that of The Times.

A PROVERB

To the Editor:—The following little verse seems apropos to the present political situation, and might well be heeded by the numerous candidates now in the field:

"Unto those who talk and talk
 This proverb should appeal:
 The steam that blows the wheels
 Will never turn the wheel."
 It seems regrettable that there should be so much political "steam" exhausted in "wheeling" blowing, when there is such urgent need of it being diverted to "turning the wheel." This applies principally to those candidates who have been polluting the air nightly over the local radio station by delivering into the archives of ancient political history, instead of offering some constructive suggestions for the salvation of British Columbia, which at present is all that interests the general public.

VICTORIA, B.C., October 24, 1933.

LETTER WRITERS

To the Editor:—Mr. G. B. Murdoch takes exception to writing over an assumed name. I take the opposite view and think it much better not to sign one's name. Most readers are not interested in knowing who wrote a letter, whether it is Brown, Jones or Robinson. So long as the matter written about is of interest and free from personalities, what difference can it make who the author is?

Mr. Murdoch lauds The Colonist for refusing to print a letter without the signature of the writer. I, on the contrary, laud The Times for allowing it to be optional. The greatest letter writer to the press of all time wrote over an assumed name and no one to the present day knows who "Junius" was, but for all that the letters can still be read with interest and profit.

The editor, of course, can refuse to print anything objectionable or uninteresting to the public.

I suggest that more attention should be given to the subject matter and little or none to the identity of the author.

BOUQUET FOR MR. SINNOTT

To the Editor:—I cannot refrain from writing to congratulate F. J. Sinnott, one of the independent candidates in the present fight, for the excellence of his speeches and the obvious sincerity and fearlessness with which he has spoken. I have listened to all his talks and have remarked upon the absolute consistency of his attitude.

Without disparaging the efforts of the other candidates who are running as independents, I must say that he has impressed me more than any of them. This is the type of province want to take up their case. We have had far too much in the past of the mere rubber stamp type of representative. It is time we woke up. This man should be elected. His record is clean and the man is obviously honest. Here's to success for Mr. Sinnott.

HON. R. H. POOLEY'S SPEECH
 To the Editor:—Hon. R. H. Pooley at Luxton, B.C., in the Esquimalt district, was reported in The Colonist of October 18, 1933, as saying that the returned man is entitled to something more than pension, and he would not interfere with his job with the government here.

speech on returned men, on October 17, 1933. Will he, through the press, deal with the following questions, as at a meeting he may name, and I will make it my business to be there? I joined the C. E. F. on August 8, 1914, was discharged on November 21, 1919. Both in Victoria, B.C. No crime sheet! Received a position from the late A. M. Johnson, K.C., chairman of the Liquor Control Board, as a returned man. I worked up to the position of travelling auditor, and when I received notice that my services were dispensed with for "was it through inability or misappropriation of funds or goods, non-attention to duty or that I had been and a life-long Liberal?" Many returned men, Mr. Editor, have lost their positions in a like manner to myself, and, sir, it is up to Mr. Pooley to tell the public, right now, the real reason for this.

It will be off his conscience—some might forgive him and vote for him, even form a union with him, but, sir, not I.

A COUNTRY RUNNING DOWN

To the Editor:—It is essential for a clear understanding of the issues at stake in this election, and the next ones that one particular point be made clear to the people of this country. In this one point we have the whole crux of the struggle between wealth and the C.C.F. The moment the people understand fully the importance and the implication of that one point the fight is over. The crux of the matter is simply this—the machines are running the men, the machines are running the country and the owners of the machines are not the people of Canada, but one or two individuals whose only qualification for owning the machines is that they possessed enough wealth to buy them from the inventor.

The machines have left manpower far in the rear already, and the only change in the future will be a still further gap. The men and women who are idle to-day, the men and women who are starving wages—they will never again see prosperity by reason of their own labor. Their own labor is not wanted. The machines are quicker, more efficient, more enduring.

This advance of the machine applies to every field of effort, to every industry, to every sphere of endeavor. You may be working to-day, you may have held a steady job for more years than you care to remember—but the machine has left manpower and with it you go out. Despite the lessons of the past few years one still hears the remark, "No machine can do what I know a man who used to say that very confidently. 'My work is done here,' he would say, and point to his head. To-day he is on relief. An accounting machine stands on the desk at which he used to stand.

But, whether your own particular work is obviously vulnerable to the onslaught of the machine or not, the essential point is that every man's work depends finally on the work of his fellow men, and if machinery is displacing his fellow men then he too will inevitably be displaced.

If the men around him are laid idle and the machines stand idle. Farms, factories, workshops, are idle. The tide of rust and rot creeps on. The controllers—the men who have seized the machines by reason of their wealth—have amply demonstrated to the people of this country and of other countries

Bladder Weakness Troublesome Nights Swiftly Relieved

If you are troubled with a burning sensation. Bladder Weakness, frequent daily annoyance, getting-up-at-night, dull pains in back, lower abdomen and down through the groin—you should try the amazing value of Dr. Southworth's "Uratals," and see what a wonderful difference they make! If this grand old formula of a well-known physician brings you the swift and satisfying comfort you are entitled to, others, you surely will be thankful and very well pleased. If it does not satisfy, are in the midst of that time when you are used to return your money on first box purchased. This gives you a ten-day test of "Uratals" without risk of cost unless pleased with results—so, if you would know the joys of peaceful, restful sleep and a normal, healthy bladder, get the test to-day. Any good druggist can supply you. (Adv.)

FP1 WHAT IS THE MYSTERIOUS?

It is only a matter of time before the sands run out and he too is idle. We are in the midst of that process to-day. It is a disease, insidious and contagious. And not the most "indispensable" employee is immune, for the simple reason that business as a whole cannot long continue while the population of a country is gradually being laid idle.

The machine themselves are not a menace. They are man's greatest contribution towards a fuller, richer life. If we operate the machines intelligently they will work for us and permit us leisure to enjoy the necessities and the luxuries which they produce. The days of slaving for twelve hours and sleeping, exhausted, for the rest of the time are over. We have used our brains and solved that problem. In future the machines will do the slaving.

But this is the period of transition—and the machines stand idle. Farms, factories, workshops, are idle. The tide of rust and rot creeps on. The controllers—the men who have seized the machines by reason of their wealth—have amply demonstrated to the people of this country and of other countries

NON-PARTIZAN RULE FAVORED

Reeve Crouch Says Time For Abolition of Party System Has Come

Standing For Saanich on His Record of Service

Abolition of the party system of government for an independent administration which could be entirely non-partisan in its operation and, if necessary, could go outside the elected representatives to choose a business man for a leader, was advocated by Reeve William Crouch, independent candidate for Saanich riding, in a campaign address at Marjold Hall yesterday evening.

The reeve told his audience he was standing on the record of his service as seven years reeve of Saanich. His work was nothing to be ashamed of, he stated, for the financial condition of the municipality could be favorably compared with any in the province. He was an independent pure and simple and was playing no favorites in this election.

He referred to the Liberal and C.C.F. platforms during his talk, stating that the former had a record of bad financing in government, as well as the Conservatives, while the latter had many impossible planks in its platform. He did not think the Liberals could put their "work and wages" plan into effect, as they proposed to do it by federal borrowing, and at the present time the Dominion Government could not finance itself, let alone lend money to British Columbia for public works.

The reeve has decided to cancel the remainder of the campaign meetings which he had scheduled for this week, including those at St. Martin's Hall to-night and Gordon Head to-morrow night. He will hold a meeting next Monday, however, at Mount View High School, and will broadcast over CPCT at 7:30 o'clock on Friday and 8 o'clock on Tuesday.

SHRINE BAND TO GIVE CONCERT

Popular Musicians in Free Programme at City Temple
Friday

The Shrine Band will give a concert in the City Temple on Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Admission will be free, but a collection will be taken to assist the work of the Temple, and it is anticipated that a full house will greet these popular musicians. Other assisting artists will include Mrs. Reese Burns, Miss Dorothy Parsons, Miss Elsie Friend and G. H. E. Green.

The complete programme follows:

Selections, "A Hungarian Comedy" and "Merry Widow," Shrine Band; vocal solo, "Bridal Dawn" (Easthope Martin); Dorothy Parsons; selection, "Glow Worm," Shrine Band; cornet solos, (a) "Ida," polka, (b) "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Mr. George Green; piano solo, "Rhapsodie Hongroise" (Liszt); Miss Elsie Friend; Shakespearean reading, Madame Reese Burns; selection, "Evening Idylls," Shrine Band; selection, (a) "La Cinqtaine" (b) "Serenade d'Amour," Shrine Band; vocal solo, "Incense" (Stephenson); Dorothy Parsons; selection, "In a Monastery Garden" (Ketilbey); Shrine Band; piano solo, "Waltz in E Minor" (Chopin); Miss Elsie Friend; reading, "A Kentucky Cinderella" (F. Hopkinson Smith); by Madame Reese Burns; selection, "Burgomaster," Shrine Band.

DUNSTER
SOMERSET, ENGLAND

Dunster is one of the most beautiful villages in northern Somerset. Quiet and secluded, with a charming air of antiquity, it nestles in a wooded vale below the Castle. The moss-roofed yarn-market in the foreground carries the memory back to bygone days when it was the centre of distribution for the local woollen industry.

IS AGAINST MORE TAXES

Dr. Clem Davies Favors Economy Beginning at Top,
He Tells Electors

Urges Electors Not to Be Swayed by Liberal By-election Victories

Declaring himself against further taxation of the working man and in favor of economy, beginning at the top instead of the bottom, Rev. Dr. Clem Davies yesterday evening continued his provincial election campaign before electors who attended a meeting in his support at Sir James Douglas School.

The subject of Dr. Davies' address was "Tricks of the Old Times Parties," and in this he dealt with old attacks on the party system. He warned against the believing of election eve promises which could not be answered, which were made by the parties.

Dr. Davies promised to make social legislation worth while and not a mere "dead letter," as he claimed it had been. Election of the Liberal Party in the forthcoming polling would be a tragic thing for the province, he thought, and he asked the electors not to be swayed by the results of the recent federal by-elections.

Capt. H. S. Thain, M.C., presided, and in his opening remarks attacked the Attorney-General, Pooley's position with regard to the administration of game laws. He did not believe it necessary to have a provincial police officer and a game warden traveling over the same country to enforce the laws, as one man could do the duty.

HECKLERS ROUTED BY AUDIENCE

People Hearing Wismer, Liberal, in Vancouver, Object to Interruptions

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 25.—When a few hecklers attempted to interrupt the address delivered by Gordon Wismer, Liberal candidate for the Legislature in Vancouver Centre riding in the Women's Building yesterday evening, they were given a rough ride, not by the speaker, but by the audience, which did not sympathize with them.

One interrupter who disagreed with Mr. Wismer's criticism of the C.C.F. policy stood up and prepared for a verbal attack, but he sat down quickly when he was greeted with a chorus of cries from the audience—"Put him out—Go back to Russia"—"Shut up."

Mr. Wismer declared the election, which will be one of the most unusual in the history of Canada, will be between the new foreign radical party, the C.C.F., and the sane and safe Liberal party. He predicted that "the independent" would not elect a handful of candidates.

ment consisted of these words: "The Jews are to blame!" And, "Germany must regain her former glory!"

NUMERICAL STRENGTH GREATEST

What things have been achieved in a few short months by these two phrases, and endless variations of them, used as weapons in the mouths of the leaders of this new and amazing Germany?

The chief achievement is that today forty of the sixty million Germans will follow willingly wherever Hitler leads, the rest will follow wherever they try to or not. I am hearing a good deal about Socialists and Communist counterpoises, but I am personally convinced Hitler has come to stay until he makes or breaks this country.

The second notable result of these historic few months is that long-suffering and fatal Israel is walling and licking her sores once more, suffering the worst persecution in her long story of suffering and persecution.

The third is that Germany is undergoing the quickest and most thorough internal revolution in regard to political and economic structure that any nation except Russia has ever seen.

The fourth is that internationalism, the gospel of peace in Europe and brotherhood among nations, has been set back at least a century, as I will try to show in a later article when I describe what the children of Germany are being taught to-day.

The fifth is that Germany claims to have 2,000,000 more men at work than she had when Hitler swept to power. Hundreds of thousands of these "employed" are doing forced labor in labor camps; and the thousands of Jews thrown out of work are not listed as unemployed in the records, because Jews don't count here any more. (To quote the words of one official in a recent speech: "I suppose we will have to admit the Jews are human beings, but only second class human beings.") Apart from this increase in employment, the cold figures show the nation's total wage bill is now less than it was seven months ago.

The sixth is that Germany is being remilitarized.

LIKE GREAT NEWS REEL

These are some of the facts of Germany, 1933, that I shall describe in the ensuing series of articles. Historians, looking back some day on this tremendous and portentous Germanic news reel on which the world's eyes are now concentrated, will be able to say it better. For us to-day, it is still a news reel. What will history say when it sets out to evaluate such scenes as these?

Witness the kaleidoscopic news reel of Germany since February 1:

"After winning their battles on every front," said Adolf Hitler on that day, "the German armies were stabbed in the back from behind. Since that day of betrayal the Almighty has turned his countenance away from us. Fourteen years of Marxism have ruined Germany; one year of Bolshevism would destroy her. Bolshevism would turn the richest and fairest territories of the world into a heap of smoking ruins. The result of Weimar republic is a heap of ruins. We now ask the German people to give us four years and then pass judgment."

"The 'four years' has decided. If any of the German people decided they couldn't wait four years to pass judgment, it wouldn't matter, for no voice is allowed to be heard but that of the Nazi rulers. The outside world makes judgments the very first day of the new dictatorship, when the dome of the Reichstag goes up in flames. That is the signal for the Nazis to sow the whirlwind."

GREATLY REDUCED WAGES

Four hundred thousand Jews are reduced to the level of helotry. All organs of free thought or speech are rigorously suppressed, and "gleichschaltung"—"bringing in to line"—becomes the permanent marching order of the German revolution. The unemployment problem is attacked fiercely, hysterically, by forcing employers to take on more workers even though to do so they must lower wages—in many cases as much as 21 per cent. Two hundred thousand new jobs are found for Nazi supporters by dismissing Jews, Liberals, Communists, Non-conformists of all camps.

With the press muzzled, the German people, who perhaps love uniforms and parades and mass action more than any other civilized people, and whose unusual sense of humor allows them to take without a smile even the most grossly pompous and absurd proclamations and fulminations from their leaders, cheer and trot down the Unter den Linden and other streets alongside the marching soldiers, becomes deeply and impressively convinced that Hitler has made Germany a great nation again, turn with fury against anyone who says a word against him. Make no mistake—if ever there was a nation behind one man, it is Germany behind Hitler to-day.

MANY ANONYMOUS DENIALS

The revolution moves fast. The outside world clamors with unspeakable reports from Germany of cruelty and stupidity. But nobody in Germany hears these reports except the leaders and officials; they don't come to the notice of the people. When the officials tell the people that in foreign countries there is "greuelpropaganda"—atrocity stories—being read and discussed, the people are genuinely hurt and dismayed—most of them. Only a few of them have seen atrocities with their own eyes. At last the authorities publish a book, in which Jews themselves deny the stories of beatings and torture and murder. The book attains a wide circulation. It is a very interesting book. I have seen it myself. On page after page there are statements swearing that the atrocity stories are all lies. But there is just one little factor the publishers of the book neglected, apparently, to go into. None of the statements is signed!

THOUSANDS OF FLAGS

But the people are convinced. Every day more and more people throughout Germany, sceptical at first of this little Austrian demagogue—Hitler—see the light and hang the swastika flag from their windows. After a week in Germany I have seen many narrow streets in which the hundreds of flags leaning from the windows completely obscure the view. The people are convinced, even those who a short time ago were loyal supporters of the gospel of the republic and peace on earth. Students with whom in my years I used to walk up the Rhine and discuss internationalism are now wearing helmets and learning the gentle uses of poison gas. Everywhere little children greet you with the Hitler salute. Everywhere the people are saying: "Germany shall not always remain enslaved! Der Fuehrer (Hitler) will make us free."

That is the significant fact about the phenomenon of Hitlerism—the fact that makes it all the more of a phenomenon: the people of Germany have accepted it. For good or ill, for the salvation or the destruction of Germany, for the peace or the destruction of Europe, for the advancement or retardation of civilization, Germany has taken Hitler to her heart, with all he stands for.

That is why I am here to-day, and for that purpose I start my pilgrimage to find what Hitler stands for in the future of modern Europe.

(Mr. Halton's next article, which will appear on Friday, outlines an interview with a German newspaperman, in which Nazi "atrocities" get a frank airing.)

The MILWAUKEE ROAD

America's Longest Electrified Railroad

Happy Valley

An enjoyable surprise party was held Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hankin, Happy Valley Road, when members of the Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute invaded their home. Auction, bridge and jigsaw puzzles featured the programme, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. W. Henderson, Miss B. Hall and Mrs. David Welch.

Garden City

The Women's Association of the Garden City United Church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Smith, Canterbury Road. The president, Mrs. Fryatt, presided.

It was arranged to have a social evening and five and ten cent fair in the church, December 7. A satisfactory report was given of the annual supper held during the month.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

FILM QUEENS ARE FIRST NIGHTERS

Two queens of the screen as you would see them only in real life—Mary Pickford, at left, and Ruth Chatterton. They appeared together recently at the opening of the grand opera season in Los Angeles, when Lawrence Tibbett appeared in the operatic version of Eugene O'Neill's drama, "The Emperor Jones."

Contribution of British Scientists Lasting One

Professor Daniel Buchanan Praises Work of Dr. J. S. Plaskett in Able Address

Tells Women's Canadian Club of Men Who Have Made Scientific History

Declaring that as British people we had every right to be proud, not only of the contributions made by British scientists of a bygone day but also of the work being done throughout the empire by modern scientists, Professor Daniel Buchanan yesterday afternoon, in an address before the Women's Canadian Club, took the occasion to pay tribute to the work of Dr. J. S. Plaskett, whose contributions to astronomical science would prove as valuable and as lasting as those of his predecessors in the world of scientific research.

Professor Buchanan, who is Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science at the University of British Columbia, punctuated a brilliant and erudite address with witty comments and homely illustrations, his able presentation of the subject "British Contributions to Science" being followed with appreciative interest and frequent laughter.

LIBERALS HELP WOMEN'S CAUSE

Much Humane Legislation Sponsored By Party, Says Esquimaux Candidate

Some of the social legislation inaugurated during the Liberal regime between 1916 and 1928, was reviewed in the interesting address given by C. E. Whitney, Esquimaux candidate for Esquimaux, before a gathering of Liberal women of the constituency held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Margaret Nicol, "Auchmountain," Esquimaux Road.

The speaker traced the history of Liberal measures in the interest of women and children of the province, from 1917, when the franchise was extended to women. He recalled the passing of the equal guardianship law whereby a mother has equal rights with her husband over their children. The Mothers' Pension Act was passed providing generous provision for indigent mothers during the time they are rearing their children at home, "a provision that the Tories Government has since made more difficult to obtain."

The Liberal Government had asked for the minimum wage law, and set up a minimum wage board with authority to set a wage scale. The Testator Family Maintenance Act protected the wife and family in the event of a man's death. Another piece of humane legislation sponsored by the Liberal Government was the Old Age Pensions Act, upon which the Conservative Government had imposed a number of harsh conditions, according to the speaker, who declared the Liberal Party was still the upholders of justice for women and children and the aged.

This party is also pledged to state health insurance so that when illness comes the earnings of the breadwinner shall not cease, and is pledged to remove the abuses of administration that the Tories Government has placed upon the pensioners and old age pensions," Mr. Whitney-Griffiths said.

At the close of the address, tea was served and a social hour enjoyed. Mrs. Robert Nicol contributing vocal solos. Assistance in serving tea was given by Lady Emily Walker, Mrs. F. Mesher, Mrs. K. McFarlane and Mrs. Olive Watt. A vote of thanks was proposed by J. Stuart Yates to Mrs. Nicol for lending her house for the occasion.

TO BOYCOTT GERMAN GOODS

Montreal, Oct. 25.—German goods were officially boycotted by the Montreal Jewish Council of Women in a resolution adopted unanimously at a meeting of the council here. Mrs. Alfred Zimmer, co-founder with her husband of the School of International Relations at Geneva, denounced Germany and defended the attitude adopted by France.

Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money as a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and breaks the inflamed throat, the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Society Women Attend the Races—As Jockeys!

When society women go to the races, that is not news. But when they go to the races and ride the horses—well, that's something! In this picture New York's leading social register are pictured in the role of jockeys riding their mounts to an exciting finish in the four-furlong race at the United Hunt Association meet in Roslyn, L.I. The first three horses to finish were ridden by Mrs. Geraldine A. Redmond, Mrs. John Hay Whitney and Mrs. J. B. Baiding, respectively.

SOCIETY GIRL HAS NEW JOB

Associated Pre.
Pittsburgh, Oct. 25.—A society girl who made her debut in Washington, tried drama and even bowed before royalty, has forsaken so glamorous a whirl to become a page in a Mellon citadel of finance.

She is Kathleen Knox, slim granddaughter of the late Philander C. Knox, Attorney-General under United States
Presidents McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

The young woman, still in her twenties, wears the regulation one-piece frock with a white pique collar which the other page girls in the Union Trust Company sport. Miss Knox's hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and her duties consist of answering executives, call bells, running intra-office errands and, in general, facilitating communication between the various offices.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
McCook Knox of Washington.

Colwood

The Wilfert Lumber Company's social club will hold the first dance of the season, November 8. The usual attractive programme of cards at 7.30, followed by dancing at 9 o'clock, will be adhered to. Tombola prizes and special novelty features will be an attraction, and Reg Wood's orchestra will be in attendance.

The regular practice held weekly by the Colwood Burns Club will take place Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. These practices are open to any person interested.

"Three Good, Healthy Reasons" for Praise

"I have three good, healthy reasons for singing the praises of BABY'S OWN TABLETS—two lovely boys and a girl, all of whom have been greatly benefited by the Tablets during babyhood," writes Mrs. Judson Millett, Mosher-ville, N.S.

"If more BABY'S OWN TABLETS were used there would be fewer sick babies," writes Mrs. Lewis Weldon, Moncton, N.B.

"I would not be without BABY'S OWN

TABLETS if they cost a dollar a box
—they are wonderful for children's fevers and sick stomachs," writes Mrs.
James O'Connor, Godfrey, Ont.

Mothers everywhere rely on BABY'S OWN TABLETS to reduce simple fever, to allay colic, to aid in cutting teeth, to keep the children's digestive systems sweet and healthy.

These sweet, easy-to-take little tablets are absolutely SAFE—see analyst's certificate in each 25-cent package.

Art Exhibition Is Officially Opened

H. Despard Twigg Reiterates Need of Permanent Art Gallery For City

Congratulates Island Artists and Craftsmen on Splendid Collection

The twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the Island Arts and Crafts Society was opened in the Belmont building yesterday afternoon by H. Despard Twigg.
The exhibition is in two sections, that on the first floor being devoted to various forms of painting and pastel, while a large room on the ground floor is occupied by a collection of craftwork, etc. The exhibition will be for two weeks.

In declaring the exhibition open, Mr.
Twigg conveyed to the society the regrets of the Lieutenant-Governor, who was unable to attend. He congratulated the society on their enterprise in getting together so fine an exhibit in a time of depression, and expressed a hope that at some future date when the depression was over the society would be able to build a suitable hall in which to preserve British Columbian art, a facility which is missing in Victoria at present. Mr. Twigg then made a tour of the show.

The first rooms of the painting exhibit are devoted to water-color. In this section there are several departures from the usual style of watercolor painting. Most noticeable of these are a "View of Sinclair Canyon" by A. L. Adkinson, in which the water rushing down the gorge is alive; Seba, a nautical view by L. Potley Jones of extraordinary coolness and calm;
two landscapes by M. M. Lettice, in a style in which the main subject stands out on a background of light; pleasing Contrast by R. Brabant, a delightful picture unfortunately placed in a poor light; Daisies and Delphiniums, a flower study by A. E. Hodgins, a charming miniature by E. Ward, highly unusual group of heads in very modern style entitled Etude, by M.
Sanderson, L. A. Loveland's Crater Lake, delightfully luminous, and a study entitled Seagulls, Devon, by M. L. Bridgman.

Notable points of the pastel and black and white section which comes next to this, are two extraordinary landscapes in the Chinese style, done in pastel by Lee Nam, and entitled Summer in China and Winter in China, an extremely strong head of an Indian prince by B. Newton, and called Sangha Singh, in which the eyes shine with an unusual brilliancy, and three studies of children by O. Allen Biller.

In the oils section outstanding features are "Logging," by G. Southwell, Man of Jambica, a head of a black man with a strange green light behind it by I. D. D. Unthoff, two paintings of missions by T. Bamford, a bunch of flowers by B. Brandt which are in the same style as his water-colors, landscapes by C. F. Barker and L. A. Loveland, a portrait head entitled Old Salt, by P. R. Reynolds, and a powerful portrait, Swedish Girl, by G. M. Snider.

The crafts section on the ground floor contains specimens of pottery and china by Miss C. Lothian, Mrs.
Gros, Mrs. V. Maynard, Mrs. M. Grute, and Mrs. M. McMoran, as well as china painting by Miss M. Lothian and Mrs. N. de W. Hensley. Other exhibits in this section are of hand weaving by Mrs. A. Gibson, examples of wool ple-tures, embroidery, rug, bags and sampler by various workers, a set of book-ends and candle sticks in carved and painted wood and fir bark, Christmas cards, totema, cloth painting, novelties in painted paper mache, and woolen rugs. A demonstration of wool spinning is given on this floor, and wool is spun to order.

Teas will be served during the course of the exhibition. After the opening the society entertained a few guests including Mr. Charles Delme Radcliffe, Sir Percy Ashby, Lady
Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Despard Twigg, Mrs. Nichol, and Mrs. Curtis Sampson.
Mrs. W. Press and Mr. W. H. Ronald are in charge of the catering.

DIVORCEE SUES FOR $1,500,000

Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Harold F. Mc-Cormick, chairman of the board of International Harvester Co., to-day was named defendant in the practice of a suit seeking $1,500,000 on behalf of Mrs. Rhoda Tanner Doubleday, New York divorcee.

The practice was filed in circuit court by Wm. B. Gemmill, a Chicago attorney, who said he undertook the action at the request of Mrs. Double-day's attorney in New York. He said he was not at liberty to disclose details of the case, but that a declaration would be filed next month.

Mr. McCormick refused to comment on the action.

McCormick was formerly the husband of the late Edith Rockefeller Mc-Cormick, and subsequently of Ganna Walsak, Polish opera singer. Mc-Cormick and his first wife were divorced in 1921, and a year later he married the singer. They were divorced in 1927.

Mrs. Doubleday is the divorced wife of Felix Doubleday, son of the book publisher, and a daughter of Mrs. John Tanner of Santa Barbara, Calif.

FOUL BAY GROUP TO HOLD DANCE

The executive of the Foul Bay Junior High School Association, met at the home of Miss Florence Siddall yesterday, the president, Albert Bevan, in the chair. It was decided that the forthcoming dance, to be held in the Jenkinson School on November 3, should be a Halloween masquerade.
A ruling was made that all dancers wear masks for the first part of the evening. Masks will be on sale at the door, and prizes will be given for the best costumes.

Miss Betty Schwarz, treasurer, stated that the regular monthly dances were proving quite successful and the proceeds were aiding the gymnasium and playground funds considerably.

Harold Gardner announced that sweater crests had been purchased for the players of the winning football team and that they would be presented at the next regular meeting of the association to be held on November 10.

Tan Elliott, social convener, announced that, owing to other activities the Halloween party planned for November 1 would be cancelled.

Miss W. Payne, vice-president, moved a vote of thanks to the retiring secretary, Miss W. Bridge, for her work on the past year, which was enthusiastically endorsed. A welcome was given Gordon Lay, the newly-elected secretary.

The meeting adjourned with a vote of thanks to Mrs. Siddall.

MISCHA ELMAN THRILLS CROWD

Great Violinist Greeted With Tumultuous Applause Here Yesterday

By G. J. D.

A recital by Mischa Elman—often styled the "Emperor" of the violin—is one to be reckoned with and remembered. As one listened to the auditorium of the First United Church, there was a sense of complete delight and musical satisfaction in all its tremendous detail that rests neither on novelty nor sensationalism. In Elman, with his generous and ever increasing luscious-ness, his bow ever as a magic wand, his stupendous technique and unusual natural inclination, one listened to the queen of instruments in the hands of a master who in his supremely chiselled, finished playing, must be imbued with the highest conception and interpretation, distinguished by thought, emotion and deep feeling.
With Elman there is violinistic art of the highest form.

His well-built programme was greatly appreciated and there was tremendous enthusiasm and prolonged applause demanding reappearances and encores.

CONTRASTING PROGRAMME
The programme opened with the familiar "Kreutzer" Sonata, op. 47 (Beethoven), in which the excellent ensemble was shared by the admirable accompanist, Sanford Schlusel, who,
as on a former occasion here, made a splendid impression. The tremendous applause that followed the magnificent rendering of a work that stands forth in all violinistic literature, was an augury of all that followed.

Mr. Elman's magnus opus was the famous and delightful Spanish "Symphonie Espagnole" (Lalo), in which the contrasting difficulties were easily surmounted, and its masterful rendition was of an extraordinary and intense charm, his hearers simply losing themselves in the beauty of the music brought forth from his magistrical "Strad."

The beautiful Andante was exquisitely played, and many expressed their opinion that the "Emperor" had never played so well before a capital city audience. The "Elman tone" at times rivaled that of a cello.

Contrastingly arranged were seven numbers in two groups, which included "Tango" by the master himself, in which he has skillfully en-wrapped his art and genius, and which was vociferously received. The unmistakable Moserian "Adagio," arranged by Friedberg, the fascinating
"Danse de Colombine" (Gretry-Hank), a delight to the eye of the student in the matter of "up-bow," "Largo," with a beautiful tone, by Gluck, arranged by Rietz, the brilliant "Siciliana et Rigaudon" (Francoeur-Kreisler); the well-known Brahms "Hungarian Dance" (F sharp minor), arranged for violin by Joseph Joachim, and the concluding gloriously brilliant "Be-lode Polonaise," by the great violinist, Vieuxtemps.

The recall numbers that only seemed to increase the demands of the audience were "Ave Maria" (Schubert, Wienlawski), Beethoven's "Contre-dances" (arranged by Elman), and in an amazing climax, Elman's glittering "Trigane Danse."

Elman appeared yesterday evening under the auspices of the First United Church choir.

Holdings of tickets for the supper dance which the Junior W.A. the Jubilee Hospital will stage at the Empress Hotel on Friday evening from 9 till 11 o'clock, are reminded to book their tables at the hotel without delay. Tickets for the dance may be obtained from Mrs.
H. S. Beckett, G 5267, while Miss Ines Carey, E 6264, is arranging bridge tables for non-dancers. The proceeds of the dance will be devoted to the splendid social service work which this body of energetic young women is carrying out among needy patients at the hospital.

WILL DEPORT "MISSING" GIRL

Hamilton Typist's Colorful Story Proved False By United States Police

Canadian Press

New York, Oct. 25.—As immigration officers moved yesterday to deport comely Laura Taylor to her native Canada, the New York Mirror stated the girl, found last Saturday after a thirty-day disappearance, had been identified by her former employer as the Hamilton, Ont., miss who gained wide publicity some months ago and obtained hundreds of proposals by stating: "If I don't find a husband I die."

Brown-eyed, auburn-haired Laura Taylor disappeared September 23 from the Elizabeth, N.J., brewery where she was the vice-president's secretary.
Her original story she had been doped by a male passerby who jabbed her with a needle was thrown overboard. Elizabeth police alleged last night, by a signed statement she had spent her "missing days" on a pleasure trip to Philadelphia.

Mrs. Walter Foster, Wellington Road, returned Monday from a visit to Tacoma.

Miss O. Congdon, Glyn Road, is

NO ALIMONY FOR ACTRESS

Mae Murray So Glad to Get Free From Prince David Mdivani

Associated Press

Los Angeles, Oct. 24.—One of the "magnificent Mdivanis," Georgian prince who, it is said, has such a talent for wooing and wedding wealthy women of the United States, was cast off in divorce court yesterday.

He is Prince David, divorced by the blonde film actress, Mae Murray, who asked no alimony, maintenance or support, saying she was glad enough to get her freedom.

Attired in a smart sports outfit, the star of the silent movie days took the
David, her fourth husband, as unreasonably jealous of her in public and often angry about guests she had at home.

A property settlement approved by the court provides a $5,000 trust fund for the couple's son, Koran, six. The actress and Mdivani were married June 27, 1926.

to Young Mothers

FACING THEIR FIRST PROBLEM OF COLDS . . .

Two generations of mothers have used Vicks VapoRub in relieving children's colds. They have proved its worth. Found out, through years of use, how dependable it is.
Younger mothers, too, are discovering every day how remarkably effective is this modern, external way of treating colds. Here are some of the reasons for its worldwide use:

Vicks VapoRub is Safe
When you use VapoRub, you avoid all risks of digestive upsets that so often come from constant dosing of children's delicate stomachs.
Being external, VapoRub can be used freely and as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

Poultice-Vapor Action
Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts through the skin like an old-fashioned poultice or plaster, gently but effectively "drawing out" tightness and soreness. At the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to choked-up air-passages.

Brings Quicker Relief
This poultice-vapor action of Vicks VapoRub is at work all night long. By morning, almost always, the worst of the cold is over. There is no substitute for VapoRub. Nothing
"just as good"—for either children's or adults' colds.

SOCIAL, PERSONAL AND HOME INTERESTS

Man With a Thousand Masks

By Augustus Muir

Gilmour was afraid at first that he had missed her, but presently caught sight of her ahead as she passed a lamp-post.

"You might at least let a man see you safely home," he expostulated, running up to her.

"It's good of you of course—but you see, I'm almost there." She stopped at an opening on the right. "And now won't you go back?"

"Why should I?"

Elizabeth Marlowe hesitated.

"It isn't a very pleasant part of the world just here," she said quietly. "Even in the semi-darkness he could see the dismal poverty of the street, and his heart went out in sudden pity."

"You live hereabouts?"

"Yes."

There was an awkward pause. He realized now why she had not wished him to accompany her. When she thought of the Marquise Hotel where she passed her working hours the contrast struck him like a blow, but it also puzzled him.

"Come on," he said gently. "I'm going to see you home."

Presently she stopped at a street door which was open. It took some time to negotiate the three flights of stairs, for Gilmour had to use matches to see the way. Her hand rested in his for a moment, and he was conscious of the delicate fragrance of her hair that seemed to hover in the darkness, then the door closed behind her.

As he felt his way down the uneven stairs the picture that remained most sharply in his mind was his momentary glimpse of her white, terrified face in the taxi cab. There was nothing that could explain it except the news he had passed on to her, the news of a certain man's arrest.

Admittedly, Lord John was no ordinary criminal: it seemed that even his real identity was a mystery, and, judging from the amount of newspaper given to him in that day's newspapers, public interest in him was at boiling point. But why the news of his arrest should have so powerfully disturbed Elizabeth Marlowe was more than Gilmour could understand.

He recalled her apprehension in the afternoon and during dinner: had she been expecting this news all day? But that did not explain why it seemed to affect her so vitally.

He recalled her apprehension in the stairs, and was about to scratch another match when he heard somebody enter the passage from the street.

He stopped, and the footsteps stopped also: then somebody, hurrying, brushed past him. Ignoring the match, Alan Gilmour held it high, and glancing back over his shoulder, got a quick impression of a face in profile on the landing above.

Out in the street Gilmour released the gasp of surprise which he had managed to suppress on the staircase.

CHAPTER IV

When Sir Richard Templeton reached the top of the stairs he knocked gently on the door in the left-hand corner of the landing.

It was opened by a woman in a black dress. Her face was in shadow, but the gas-jet in the small lobby behind her showed up the strong features and brilliant black eyes of the man on the threshold.

"Richard?"

"May I come in?"

The woman hesitated, then moved back with obvious reluctance to let him pass.

"I asked you not to come here again, Richard." In spite of the coldness of her tones, her low voice had a musical and cultured quality that was strangely at variance with the dismal and impoverished room into which she showed him.

"I want to see you alone, Anne. Yes, please tell Elizabeth not to disturb us for a few minutes."

He looked at the woman in front of him, and his lips hardened. It was obvious that Elizabeth had derived her beauty from her mother. Anne Marlowe could not have been more than forty, and was still attractive, with pale transparent skin, soft masses of auburn hair, and a figure that was slender and graceful; but ill-health and overwork had left their dark records on her face—in the hollows round the cheek-bones.

"Elizabeth has just come in," she replied. "I'll tell her."

Templeton looked up sharply. "Just come?"

"Yes, she's been at the theatre with a friend."

"The man I passed on the stairs just now. Who is he?"

"He's staying at the Marquise Hotel. I believe—Gilmour's name."

She looked inquiringly at Sir Richard Templeton, as he gave an explanation of annoyance.

"No, no; there's nothing wrong!" he said.

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing. I'm just a bit out of breath."

"You're all right, Anne. Yes, please tell Elizabeth not to disturb us for a few minutes."

Uncle Wiggily and the Two Bugs

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

When Baby Buntly hopped so fast into Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, calling that some one was in the little yellow house, the rabbit gentleman was so surprised he didn't know what to say.

"What—what's that, Buntly?" he asked. "Uncle Wiggily was standing in front of a looking glass trying to think of a new way to twinkle his pink nose upside down. What did you say, Buntly?"

"I said," spoke the little orphan rabbit, "that as I hopped past your yellow pumpkin house just now I heard voices talking."

"Dear me! Perhaps it was the Bob Cat," whispered Uncle Wiggily.

"No, it was a little, teeny, weeny sort of voice," said Buntly.

"Then perhaps it was the sly Weasel," suggested Mr. Longears.

"It was too small a voice for even the Weasel," declared Baby Buntly. "You had better come out and see who is in your house, Uncle Wiggily. I'm sure there will be no harm, for the voices were soft and gentle."

"No, it was a little, teeny, weeny sort of voice," said Buntly.

2. It is the yeast world-famous medical authorities recommend.
3. For 65 years it has been known as the best for all purposes.

Dr. Charles Jacquelin, the celebrated French stomach and intestinal specialist, explains:

CONSTIPATION WEAKENS OUR VITAL ORGANS—UNDERMINES OUR HEALTH—YEAST IS THE BEST REMEDY.

UNLIKE CATHARTICS, fresh yeast actually strengthens the intestines. Also, it softens the body's wastes—helps clear them away. Indigestion usually goes—health and vitality return. Just eat 2 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast daily. It's very rich in vitamins B, C, D, and E. At grocery stores, restaurants, soda fountains, drug stores. Why not start to eat Fleischmann's Yeast today?

Nanaimo Carries Off Drama Trophy

Crowd, Applauds Major L. Bullock-Webster's Decision in Final of Contest

Young People's Union of United Church Is Congratulated for Organization

The cup presented by J. W. Spencer for annual competition between dramatic groups from Young People's associations was the Nanaimo Y.P., Devins Group, with their production of "Squaring It With the Boss," presented during the second half of the first annual drama festival sponsored by the Young People's Union of the United Church in Victoria.

An audience of over a hundred assisted at the performance in the Metropolitan Church, and heartily applauded the verdict of the judge, Major L. Bullock-Webster.

"Squaring It With the Boss" is the story of the complications which beset a young couple who had resented to the husband's boss that they had a child, so that the man might get a raise. The boss comes to supper, and two aunts who hate each other and dole on a cat and a parrot respectively come to stay. The triumph of the two were once in love with the boss, to all ends happily. The cast was as follows: Bessie Davis as Beth Greening, Dulcie Odgers as Aunt Hortense, Louise Joseph as Aunt Clara, Grace Clement as Johny Bender, Jack Taylor as Mr. Dune and Jimmy Greening as Tom Bertram.

Second place was awarded to the Metropolitan Y.P. for their presentation of "Good Medicine," the tale of an honest doctor who made money when he expected his honesty to lose it for him, with the following cast: Bert Simpson as Dr. Graves, Edith Church as Mrs. Graves, and Catherine Craig as Mrs. Betty Sage.

Third was Equimult, the leaders in Monday's half of the contest, for their second production of "A Man Called Another," with Marjorie Roode, Mrs. Bert Hughes, William Nicholas, Gordon Corless and A. W. Goodwin. Fourth place was given to the production of "Rosalie," the story of a cunning maid, by the Duncan Y.P. The cast of "Rosalie" was as follows: Betty Driver as Rosalie, Christine Mackenzie as Madame Bol, and Val Kyle as Monsieur Bol.

Before announcing the awards, Major Bullock-Webster congratulated the United Church Young People's Union on the success of their first drama festival, and all the competitors on the high standard of their productions. These, he said, showed careful preparation and considerable talent. It was such simple plays as these which were doing the greatest good for the cause of Canadian drama, training as they did the actors of the future. Major Bullock-Webster then went on to give some criticism of the audibility and action of the performers.

Rev. G. Brown was asked by Donald McCain, chairman of the festival, to present the cup to the winners, and in expressing his pleasure paid tribute to the work of Donald McCain and all the members of the Union who had contributed to the success of the contest.

R. HAYWARD URGED UNION

Declares in Election Speech He Advocated Coalition Two Years Ago

Reginald Hayward, Independent candidate, in an address yesterday evening declared he had urged, in writing to the Premier and the Conservative Association, that a coalition government be formed to insure a greater confidence in the minds of the people by all political parties joining hands.

No one regretted more than he that the union effort failed at that time, he said. He thought that hunger for office and patronage were the main factors in defeating it.

While he believed that the time had arrived when the province could be served better by an independent government, he did not believe that all the honesty, all the good morals and all the virtues rested only in those who are seeking suffrage as Independents.

He was firmly convinced that the average man in public life who has been sent to Parliament to represent the people has been an honorable man and endeavored to do his duty as he stated.

HAD TO BE FED AT 24

Rheumatism Made Her "Like a Mummy"

NOW KEPT ACTIVE BY KRUSCHEN

The details of a most stubborn case of rheumatism have just come to our notice.

"Some time ago," the woman writes in a letter, "I had a severe attack of acute rheumatism. I tried everything that anybody advised. But all and everything had no effect. I sat just like an Egyptian mummy, and looked like one the longer I sat. My limbs got stiffer, and movement became absolutely impossible without a terrible amount of pain, which at times made me scream. My ankles and feet were so swollen I could not see my toes. It was the same with my hands—they were useless."

"My mother had to feed me with my food. I was only twenty-four, and I had suffered like this for months (it seemed to me years). One day a lady called, and, seeing my condition, said 'The only thing that will touch that is Kruschen Salts.' I had tried nearly everything, but I sent for a bottle of Kruschen, not expecting any results. To my utter amazement, my limbs slowly but surely unlocked. The joy with which I walked from one room to another was really pathetic, for I thought I was doomed to a life of helplessness and misery. Since then I have never been without a bottle of Kruschen in the house." (Mrs. M. K.) The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy, regular action; assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid. When poisonous uric acid—with its deposits of needle-pointed crystals—goes, there's no doubt about those aches and pains going too! Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

BUILD MARKETS POOLEY URGES

Results of Tolmie Foresight Now Start to Show, He Says

Curtailed of Borrowing Advocated By Attorney-General

Warning that a government under the Liberal party "would only mean piling up more debt for the citizens of British Columbia and a continuation of their habitual extravagance," Hon. R. H. Pooley, Attorney-General and Unionist candidate in Esquimalt, declared that although the Tolmie government had spent considerable money, it had spent less than one-third of amount asked for by organizations and various groups of citizens.

He was speaking at the public meeting in Colwood Hall, under P. C. Blake as chairman.

The Attorney-General asserted that the C.C.F. would only throw the province into a chaotic state.

"Vote for the devil you know, rather than the devil you don't know," Mr. Pooley said with regard to both parties mentioned.

He came out for the curtailment of borrowing, and for the establishment of overseas markets. He pointed to the successful policy of the Tolmie administration in the last few years through dispatching trade commissioners to many foreign lands.

"We are just now beginning to reap the harvest," Mr. Pooley went on.

"Lumber camps and sawmills here have prospered for the first time in years, owing to the Australian and New Zealand trade that has resulted from the policy and foresight of the Tolmie government. Overseas trade, that with Australia especially, has increased tremendously in the last few months.

With this increased trade new money is flowing into the province, and is wiping out the effects of the depression.

"Already, as a result, 40,000 persons, who were on relief in February, are now back at work in this province, reducing the total number of unemployed to 90,000."

Mr. Pooley said the amount set aside for relief was not enough, but it had to be remembered it was not the government that paid the relief, but the neighbors of the unemployed.

BOWSER SPEAKS IN VANCOUVER

Vancouver, Oct. 25.—There must be more "noes" than "ayes" in the next provincial administration, but at the same time there must be careful consideration of all legitimate demands, declared W. J. Bowser in an appeal for "age government" yesterday evening.

He was addressing a gathering in the L.O.O.F. Hall, Main Street and Sixth Avenue, on behalf of John Bennett and David McKenzie, Independent Non-partisan candidates in Vancouver-Burrard.

"The ayes" in the past had been much to blame for the present load of debt the people of this province had to carry, Mr. Bowser continued. He admitted, however, that there should be some adjustments in the relation between the province and the municipalities. He also favored unemployment and health insurance.

Englehart, Ont., Oct. 25 (Canadian Press).—Elmer Hutson of Englehart was instantly killed when he was shot in the head while he and a companion were hunting. His friend's gun was accidentally discharged, apparently when the trigger caught in the smock he was wearing.

KINGSFORD-SMITH IS GIVEN $15,000

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 25.—As the result of wide public agitation for appointment of Air Commodore Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, famous flyer, to some public position, the federal government has announced a grant of $15,000 to him, no positions being available.

Sir Charles said the money would go toward establishing him in the aviation business.

Sir Charles this month set a new record of seven days and four hours for the flight from England to Australia, but this a week later was eclipsed by some hours by T. P. Uim and three companions.

RHODES SEE BUSINESS GAINS

Amherst, N.S., Oct. 25.—Canada's Minister of Finance, Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, believes the Dominion "is gradually working toward better times." The minister expressed this opinion as he arrived home from Ottawa to visit his mother, who has been in ill health for the last few weeks.

Unemployment was decreasing and there was a general improvement in business, he said. There were prospects of increased activity in the lumbering industry, with a consequent pick-up in employment.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 25 (Canadian Press).—Max (Little Giant) Benton of Omaha, who beat solid steel bars across his chest at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis, is going to try a comeback at the fair in Chicago.

Benton is forty-nine; his hair is grey, but "I'm in the pink," he said.

NUDIST LEADER IS CONVICTED

Jury of Elderly Men Finds Against Proprietor of Colony in Michigan

Allegan, Mich., Oct. 25.—Conviction of Fred T. Ring, nudist colony proprietor, on a charge of indecent exposure yesterday by a jury of elderly men brought to a sudden end Michigan's first court case involving nudism.

The charge carries a possible penalty of a $500 fine and one year's imprisonment, but Ring was not sentenced yesterday, at his own request. His personal bond of $100 was continued, and he said he planned an immediate appeal.

Presented by a ruling of Circuit Judge Fred T. Miles from offering testimony concerning his physical and mental effects of nudism—on which they had hoped to base their case—continued for Ring brought the defence to an abrupt close yesterday. Judge Miles then instructed the jury of grey-haired men, mostly farmers, to return a verdict in fifteen minutes.

Washington, Oct. 25.—A three-cent increase, as reported by the United States Labor Department in September, was the average hourly earnings of workers in 423,000 manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries. The wages ran 3.14 cents an hour, while the hours per week were dropped from 38.6 to 36.1.

In computing the number of words in an advertisement, estimate groups of three or less figures as one word. Dollar marks and all abbreviations count as one word.

In estimating the number of lines in an advertisement, count five words for the first two lines and seven words for each line thereafter. This is not an absolute rule as the number of lines, much depending on the length of the individual words.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement ordered for more than one issue. Any claim for return of money on error or omission must be made within thirty days from the date of the same, otherwise the claim will not be allowed.

Advertisers who desire to have replies addressed to a box at the Times Office and forwarded to their private address. A charge of 10c is made for this service.

Subscribers wishing their addresses changed should notify this office as well as the carrier. If your Times is missing, phone E4175 before 8 p.m. and a copy will be sent by special messenger.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Wong Yew, charged with possession of opium, was remanded in the City Police Court this morning to Monday.

For driving to the common danger on Johnson Street, Joan White was fined $1 in the City Police Court this morning.

The Veterans of France will hold a general meeting at the clubrooms, 912 Douglas Street, at 8 p.m. to-morrow. Important business will be discussed and all members are requested to attend.

Miss F. E. Dowdall, 908 Cowichan Street, was awarded the eight free logs seats by the Dominion Theatre for identifying the Dominion Theatre "Lady for a Day," who walked through the Hudson's Bay store yesterday.

A case under the Income Tax Act for failure to send in returns was before Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court this morning. Gordon Cameron, representing the prosecution, stated that four separate charges had been laid against the defendant covering four years, but he understood the deficiency was now being supplied and the department did not intend to press for a heavy penalty.

David Crawford, one of the crew of the Dominion fisheries cruiser Malaspina, sustained a broken leg when he fell down a light well of the Ogden Point grain elevator shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. He was on his way to the ship at the time and stumbled in the dark. The C. and C. ambulance took him to the hospital where he was attended by Dr. Gordon McKicking.

James L. Smith, captain of the power boat Kitanyakwa, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Magistrate George Jay on a charge of carrying a .45 Cal. revolver, capable of being concealed, in the boat without a permit required by the new amendment to the Criminal Code. Hearing of the case was set for this afternoon. The defendant was arrested at Bedwell Harbor, Pender Island, Monday evening when a provincial police squad seized a cache of concealed liquor.

The place of meeting of the Oxford Group Fellowship scheduled to be held at the Nutsell on Port Street to-morrow night at 8 o'clock has been changed to the Memorial Hall at the same hour. The meeting is open to all adherents of the movement, but those who received their first experience at the recent house party are especially invited. The meeting of the house party team will be held at 7 o'clock to-morrow night at the Nutsell, as previously arranged.

Eric C. Birch-Jones, driver of an automobile which crashed into a street car at the intersection of Yates and Government Streets, last Saturday night, was fined $20 in the City Police Court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving to the common danger. The explanation offered by Carey Martin, who acted for Mr. Jones, was that the defendant was talking to a friend in the car at the time and did not see the standing street car until it was too late to avoid a crash. The street car was damaged to the extent of $3.50.

The members of the Victoria Dental Society held their inaugural meeting for the season last evening, gathering at Speedie's Cafe for a dinner at 6.30 o'clock. Following the transaction of numerous items of business the president introduced the guest speaker, E. E. Rogers, managing director of the Ash Temple Dental Supply Company of Vancouver, who gave an interesting and helpful talk on the progress and possibilities of the modern dental office. During the evening the members of the society by silent vote paid tribute to the memory of Dr. Lewis Hall, who passed away recently, and who was one of the charter members. Dr. Stanley F. Miles presided and in his attendance were Drs. W. J. Gibson, H. L. Burgess, E. C. Fowler, C. B. Moss, J. H. Fraser, W. N. Goring, J. C. Poole, W. W. Bryce, T. H. Johns, H. J. Henderson, R. Mitchell, C. N. Westwood, R. F. Verrinder, P. J. Rumball, B. E. Nickels, Mercer and Messrs. E. E. Rogers and T. C. Moulds.

Many Tributes To Late Mrs. Shields

Many friends attended the funeral of Mrs. Jennie Grace Shillington Shields, which was held yesterday afternoon, and the many beautiful floral tributes which surrounded the casket were a silent testimony to the esteem in which she was held by her many friends. Rev. G. A. Reynolds conducted the service, and was assisted by Rev. F. W. McKinnon, Rev. A. S. Imrie, D.D., and Rev. L. Sloan. The hymns sung were "Dear Lord, and Saviour of Mankind" and "Abide With Me." The Gloria Marchant sang the solo, "The Old Rugged Cross," and Miss Sowercraft presided at the organ. Interment was in Royal Oak Burial Park, with the following acting as pallbearers: Rev. Fred Shields, Boise, Idaho, and Roy Shields of New Westminster, sons of the deceased; Kenneth Sloan, New Westminster, and Alister and Shields Imrie of Victoria, grandsons, and Rev. L. Sloan of New Westminster, and Rev. S. Imrie of Victoria, sons-in-law.

Has Seen Many Odd Things But Not "Caddy" DAUGHTERS OF PTY ACTIVE

Pilot Percy Barnes Sights Queer Sea Denizens During Regular Air Trips
Charles F. Eagles and H.M. C.S. Vancouver's Crew Report Recent Experiences

In flying across the straits in the regular air mail service between Victoria and Seattle, Percy Barnes, famed flying postman, has yet to sight Cathoosaurus, but he would not be surprised if he did, for he has seen some strange denizens of the deep during his flights over these waters.

Barnes was here yesterday to pick up the inbound airmail brought in by the Empress of Japan, when conversation naturally turned to "Caddy," sensational gambling herabout.

"What do you know about the sea serpent, Percy?" someone asked. "You ought to have seen Caddy somewhere in your travels." "You would be surprised at what I have seen," replied the air pilot. "I have seen huge fish in the straits between here and Port Townsend which as long as the fuselage of my plane and with the beam of a large I dubbed them pinto fish, for they have big white spots on them like a pinto pony. I have seen them singly and also in schools when I have been flying low over the surface. On certain days when the atmosphere is clear you can see possibly fifty feet beneath the surface of the water from the plane. I have seen mammoth fish with heads like a pig and other remarkably strange objects that might easily be taken for a sea serpent." "No, they were not whales," the airman countered. "Take it from me, there are some strange creatures below the surface that few landmen see." "Well," drawled the pilot as the last mail bag was heaved into the cockpit of his flying boat, "if Caddy happens to come up some time when I am on the route I'll say hello and tell him to drop in and leave his card."

Charles F. Eagles, who reported sighting the serpent in Cadboro Bay two weeks ago this morning gave the following statement of his experience to The Times:

"On October 14, between 1.30 and 2 o'clock in the afternoon, I was sitting on the veranda of my residence on Cadboro Bay beach when I saw what appeared to be an overture to a shark. The object was moving and then appeared a huge creature with large body, a long tail and head. The creature was plainly visible to the naked eye. Through my opera glasses I could see every detail, and immediately started sketching the creature as I expected every moment it would disappear. I finished my sketch and made notes on the sketch of every detail that I could possibly think of. I estimated the length, breadth and color, and had ample time to get a good view as the creature was in full view for a period of four or five minutes. "During the whole time I was sketching the creature, the water was partly submerged, but before it submerged it raised the entire head out of the water for a few seconds, giving me time to sketch the head. It then slowly turned and submerged. ESTIMATES SIZE

"My approximate estimates of the creature are as follows: The body was four feet out of the water, and about twenty feet long, and eight to ten feet in diameter at the widest. It gave me the impression that four-fifths of the body was under water. The head and neck were about ten feet long, the tail about two feet out of water and thirty feet long. The creature had spikes on its back the entire length, and it seemed to me the spikes were a projection of the vertebrae, the spinal column was plainly visible and seemed to be covered with a transparent skin. The color was a brownish grey covered with large spots along the spine. The fins were visible. The creature seemed to be covered with shiny scales. "In my opinion it is not a conger eel, or a sea serpent, but a giant member of the lizard family, and it had the appearance of the head and body of a camel, with a serrated back and a large reptile-looking mouth. This creature, in my opinion, has been visiting Cadboro Bay for the last three years.

Members of the ship's company of H.M.C.S. Vancouver had two somewhat exciting experiences during the last two days and on both occasions thought that "Caddy" was paying them a visit. "THOUGHT IT WAS 'CADDY'"

The ship's editor relates the stories as follows: "On Monday forenoon a large head was noticed appearing at intervals in the harbor. Naturally, it was thought that the renowned 'Caddy' was making a visit to the vicinity, but telescopes soon proved that it was only a large sea lion which remained for some considerable time before disappearing. "Tuesday night at approximately 7.40 o'clock, the second event happened when a large skate (or sting ray) was seen between the ship's side and the jetty. Some of the lads procured a grappling hook and line, eventually succeeding in hooking and hauling the fish on deck."

HAROLD M. LEWIS DIES SUDDENLY

Harold Madison Lewis, 362 King George Terrace, passed away suddenly in the Jubilee Hospital yesterday afternoon, aged forty-one years. An inquest will be held to-morrow morning. Mr. Lewis was born in Victoria and was a surveyor by profession. Funeral services will be held on Friday afternoon at 2.30 at St. Michael's Church, Royal Oak, Rev. F. Comley will officiate and interment will be in St. Michael's churchyard.

LAST TRIBUTE PAID
The funeral of Mrs. Alice Holyoake was held yesterday afternoon in the presence of her relatives and many friends. Canon P. A. Chadwick officiated. The hymn sung was "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and Mrs. S. M. Morton sang the solo, "Sleep On, Beloved." The remains were laid to rest in Royal Old Burial Park, with the following acting as pallbearers: A. Warwick, W. Long, A. Watson, J. D. Crowther, G. A. Noble and T. Hamilton.

Birthday Greetings Are Extended To-day To—

MISS HELEN HARRIS
JAMES BLACKSTOCK
DOUGLAS BANKS

Miss Helen Harris, who is a native daughter, resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Harris, 1694 Fort Street. She has appeared in a number of stage productions here including "The Beaux Arts" presentation of "Berkeley Square" last year. She was also featured in the production of the Victoria College Players. Miss Harris attended school here, and after two years at Victoria College and took her third year at the University of B.C. This year Miss Harris is attending the Provincial Normal School here. She is a keen grass hockey player.

Jim Blackstock, a well known native son of Victoria, is to-day celebrating his twenty-first birthday. Jimmy is a member of the Oaklands Football Club, and in the past years he has worked for the Island Tug and Barge Co., but at the present he is working on a ranch. He is also a well-known tennis player, and has been a member of the Victoria public school, and later the Victoria High School. At present he resides with his parents at 2322 Howard Street.

CARD SELLERS NEED LICENSE

City Inspector Warns Christmas Card Canvassers of Regulations

L. E. Gower, license inspector for the city, this morning issued a warning to canvassers for Christmas cards representing outside firms. All such canvassers must obtain a license to take orders for their goods in house-to-house canvassing, he said. This ruling does not apply to agents for firms located in Victoria who are paying a business or license tax, Mr. Gower explained. "However, those who are working for Christmas card firms located outside of the city, whether as spare time canvassers or full time, must secure a license. Mr. Gower said. The fee is $50. In former years complaints have been received regarding the flooding of the local market by Christmas cards from the east and officials believe there is sufficient local production to supply the demand. However, agents for outside firms are perfectly at liberty to do business in this way, providing they obtain the necessary license as the local firms must pay taxes and license fees in order to continue in business.

IS LAID TO REST

A large attendance of sorrowing friends and many beautiful floral tributes marked the funeral yesterday of Major Barnett Harvey, who passed away on Sunday, Dean Quainton officiated, and Barnett Harvey Jr., W. H. Parker, George Barton, G. B. Williams, G. C. Grant and W. B. Wilson acted as pallbearers. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

Too Much Mediocrity In World, Says Elman

But People Will Always Appreciate the Fine Art of Music, Famous Violinist Declares

Virtuoso's Recital in New York in December Will Mark Twenty-fifth Anniversary

"People will always appreciate good music; it is like a great edifice built upon a rock—it will stand forever," said Mischa Elman, noted violin virtuoso, in an interview at the Empress Hotel to-day. "In music there are certain ideals which cannot be departed from. The trouble in this world is that we have to deal with so much mediocrity. The people, those who know good music, want the best that the art can give. That is why good music will ever be supreme." Mr. Elman spoke of his delight in being back once again among Canadians who he observed are great music lovers and steadfastly appreciative of the finer arts. He is on his way back to California after playing at Winnipeg and Vancouver. When he returns to New York December 11 to put on a recital there, Mr. Elman stated, he will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary since he first played in the United States. It will be one of the great moments of his life, the virtuoso observed with characteristic enthusiasm. From Victoria he will go to Portland, being scheduled to play there to-morrow night, an then will go to Carmel and Palo Alto, Calif., where he will be heard by the faculty and students of Stanford University. Later the violinist will take a swing through Texas and the Southern States before returning to New York, which city he expects to reach November 15. His next tour will be in Europe, but he does not expect to play in Germany until the Nazis are more tolerant. BELIEVES IN PRACTICE

Madison Square Garden Hopes to Build Threat for Carnera

Walter Hagen Proves He Can Still Stage Brilliant Come-back

Baseball Umpires May Lose Right to Banish Player From Game

NOW THAT Primo Carnera has defended his heavyweight championship by turning back the threat of Paulino Uzcudun, "Bouncing Basque," Madison Square Garden proposes to build a new threat against him. This has become necessary since the Garden has refused to co-operate with Jack Dempsey in the promotion of a Max Baer-Carnera bout.

If the recent Percott-McCorkindale activity was meant as a foundation for the carrying out of the intention of building a contender for the Man Mountain, the odds had better be taken down and start on a new basis. Neither of these two will stand up, Percott, a promising young fighter before an accident sent him hurtling through the windshield of an automobile, does not seem quite heavy enough for the groundswell of the fight at the decision to McCorkindale in a bout that failed to produce a great deal of action. McCorkindale has yet to prove himself a heavyweight of the calibre. Now the Garden insists on a further experiment by attempting to match McCorkindale with Jack Sharkey. If that is to be a real effort to create a contender the Garden must be in a tough spot. The first thing we know they will be promoting another Carnera-Sharkey bout.

Walter Hagen who toured Europe during the recent summer performed another of his sensational comebacks, which so appeal to the gallery, in Scotland. In an exhibition match against James Watson, a Scottish amateur champion, who is looked upon as one of the best golfers Scotland has produced in many years, Hagen was down at the end of the first hole, but he rallied to win the match 2 to 1. Hagen negotiated the second round in 68, against McLean's 77.

In the second round, however, the positions were dramatically reversed. Hagen went out in 35 to win back five holes. Then two successive three-hole holes-in-one enabled him to square the match, and he went ahead for the first at the thirtieth, where he holed a chip shot for a two. McLean's second round was a hole-in-one at the thirty-second, but that was the only hole the amateur won on the second round. Hagen won the thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth holes to win the match 2 to 1. Hagen negotiated the second round in 68, against McLean's 77.

When Umpire Charlie Moran put Heinemann of the Washington Senators out of the fourth game of the recent world baseball series he certainly started something. At the time, there were many critics who were of the opinion that while a player has the power to banish the offending player he should have plastered a substantial fine on Heinemann instead of putting him out of the game. These critics considered the penalty too weak. The Washington club and also weakened the game and an attraction for thousands of cash customers should not have been so penalized.

It is now intimated that when the baseball magnates gather in December, for their annual confab, the power to banish a player from the game will be taken from the umpires. The contention that Moran should have fined Heinemann heavily instead of putting him out of the game because it weakened the Washington club and reduced the value of the attraction, has its other side. If Heinemann's offense was great enough to warrant banishment, it certainly would call for a very heavy fine and chances are that Heinemann would not have finished that game in top form with a heavy fine hanging over his head. In view of all this fuss, what Heinemann said to Moran must have been loaded with dynamite.

The many dog fanciers in Victoria will be interested in the information that in the month of September 766 more dogs were registered with the American Kennel Club than during the corresponding period of 1932. This is clear proof that the dog-breeding industry never has faltered through all hard times and kennel owners have carried on with amazing courage and success. Registrations for the month of September totaled 5,170. The figures for last year were 4,335. Litter registration also shows a gratifying increase having jumped from 3,580 to 3,870.

Special Meeting Of Gorge Vale Golf Club

The president of the Gorge Vale Golf Club recently requests all members interested in the welfare of the club to attend a special meeting under the auspices of the membership committee, Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Gorge Vale clubhouse. Reports will be received on the golf campaign now under way. It is hoped, by this method, sufficient funds will be raised to complete the entire eighteen holes. This work will be done by the registered unemployed of Esquimalt and Victoria.

33 to 1 Choice Is Winner of Famous English Handicap

Sir Abe Bailey's Entry Has Two-length Lead Over Second Place Denbigh

STALKY TAKES THIRD POSITION

All Three Outsiders in Betting; King and Queen Are Among Large Crowd

Canadian Press
Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 25.—The long-shot Raymond today won the ninety-fourth renewal of the Cambridgehire Stakes, famous autumn handicap, with Denbigh second and Stalky third, in what was almost a complete upset.

Raymond, at 33 to 1, won by two lengths over Denbigh, at 20 to 1. Stalky, 50 to 1, was another three-quarters of a length back. Raymond, owned by Sir Abe Bailey, was ridden by Nicol, and carried 116 pounds. Denbigh is owned by Sir Ernest Tate. He was ridden by Nevitt, carrying 121 pounds. Stalky, owned by Sir Thomas Putnam, was ridden by Carr and carried only ninety-seven pounds.

Twenty-six horses ran the mile and an eighth of the big race, established in 1839. Tartan, Verelst and Bucknell were the last-minute withdrawals. The winner is a three-year-old by Gainsborough out of Nipsquik.

Among the beaten field were all the public choices, including His Majesty's horse Limerick, the favorite, King George and Queen Mary were among the immense crowd that flocked to turf headquarters, despite cold, dreary weather, for the big handicap.

Raymond was well up with the leaders from the start, went to the front at "The Buses," a quarter mile from home and held on a challenge from Denbigh in the last few yards, to win handsily. His time was 1:53.

Limelight showed in front soon after the get-away, but he was overtaken by the last quarter-mile, where he faded back to finish fourth. Gino, Alluvial and Young Native were next in order.

Los Angeles Battler Awarded Technical Knockout Over Vancouver Boy

Seattle, Oct. 25.—Joey Ponce, 131½, Los Angeles, was awarded a technical knockout over Alan Foston, 132½, of Vancouver, B.C., in the final round of a scheduled eight-round bout at the Crystal Ball when yesterday evening. The referee stopped the fight when Foston, reeling around the ring, was an easy target for Ponce's punches.

Ponce had Foston down for the count of nine in the fifth round and again in the eighth. Foston came back strong in the sixth and seventh, but was worn down by many body blows.

Chris Pineda, 124, Los Angeles, was awarded a decision over Bobby Gray, 128, Seattle. The bout went eight rounds.

Ford Smith, 182, Kallispell, Mont., was given a technical knockout victory over George Baker, 183, Seattle, in a six-round battle.

Justo Pasco, 142, Seattle, put Manuel Ponce, 143, down for the count in the first round of a scheduled four-round match.

Port Erie, Ont., Oct. 25.—Four deals are pending as a start in the rebuilding programme of the Buffalo Bisons International Hockey League champions. Manager Frank Nighbor, former Ottawa poke-checking wizard, announced yesterday.

Nighbor Monday signed for his third consecutive season with the Bisons, who play their home games in the arena here.

Investigate Status Of Ottawa Grid Star

London, Ont., Oct. 25.—Abe Ellowitz, Ottawa's forward passer, football star, will not complete the season with Rough Riders if the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada discovers officially he played semi-professional baseball in Detroit. J. Howard Crocker, president of the A.A.U. of C., said yesterday.

Complete investigation of Ellowitz's activities is being carried out by W. J. Snyder, Hamilton, secretary of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, said he had procured a box score showing Ellowitz's name in the line-up of a Michigan semi-pro team.

Roy Worters Cuts Own Pay

New York, Oct. 25.—Meet the hockey player who cut his own salary. Roy Worters, diminutive goalie of the New York Americans, works under a hold-over contract for 1934 so he was not asked to take a reduction in salary with other members of the team. Worters found out all other players had accepted the proposition of Owner Bill Dwyer, so he volunteered to accept a reduction and will work under the same arrangement as the others.

LAKE HILL TO MEET CLUBMEN

Clash in Feature Game of Basketball Card To-night at High School

Adverts and Standards Battle in Women's Game; Dealats Oppose Regents

Albert Martin's Tillamook Senior B men's basketball team will tangle with the Lake Hill senior squad in the feature game of the Victoria and District Basketball League's card of games at the High School gym to-night. The other two games will bring together the Adverts and Standard Steam Laundry in a women's senior encounter and the Dealats and Regents in an Intermediate B boys' game.

The Tillamooks will be after a win as defeat will put them far behind the leading Colonist team. The Dealats defeated the clubmen in the opening game of the season and since that time both teams have won all their games. Lake Hill will trot out their full team as a victory will put them in second place.

The best game of the evening should be between the Adverts and Standards. The Adverts have been undefeated to date, while the Standards dropped their opening game. Both teams have been playing great ball and a fast game is looked for.

The Regents-Dealats game should provide the fans with some good basketball as both are young teams and keen. To date the Dealats look like the class of the Intermediate B division but they will have to play their best to win to-night.

Tommy Macdonald will referee all games with the initial fixture scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock.

ATTITUDE OF CITY PRAISED

Visiting Marathoners Who Attempted Straits Swim Appreciated Reception

William Zimsen, Tegmeier's Trainer, Expresses Thanks; To Try Again

Appreciation of the generous support given Roland Tegmeier, Tacoma, and Paul Chouteau, Paris, the visiting marathoners who attempted to swim from Victoria to Port Angeles on October 15, was voiced by William Zimsen, Tegmeier's trainer, in a letter to Harold Palmer of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Zimsen had nothing but praise for the sporting attitude of Victoria's public and felt that he was much towards bringing the swimmers back here in the future.

After thanking Mr. Palmer and others who assisted, for their generous efforts, Mr. Zimsen stated: "I have never witnessed a crowd of people with so much sporting attitude as Victoria has. It is the most wonderful thing I have ever seen in that line. It seemed as if everyone in the city was pulling for us, and the only way we can show our real appreciation is by actually accomplishing this swim. And if things go the way I hope they will, we will make another attempt in the near future. I am positive Tegmeier can do this if he is handled in the right manner."

Winnipeg Hockeyist Going to England

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Art Rice-Jones, who guarded the nets for the Elmwood Millionaires Juniors, 1931 Dominion champions, is the latest recruit for the Quebec Hockey Club at London, England. He will replace Art Puttner, formerly announced as their goal-tending acquisition, but now unable to go.

Two of Rice-Jones' former teammates have already secured hockey berths in the British metropolis. "Spunk" Duncan, playing for the Grosvenor House Canadians, and Archie Creighton, who has signed with the Queens Club.

Peden-Fielding In Second Place Tie

Remain Two Laps Behind Van Kempen and Audy in Toronto Six-day Bike Race

Lew Rush and Beckman in Sixth Position; Max Hurley in Spill To-day

Toronto, Oct. 25.—Pete Van Kempen and his colorful Montreal partner, Jules Audy, continued to lead Toronto's six-day bicycle race as the boys took it easy through the forenoon hours today. At 11 o'clock the fifty-ninth hour, the Van Kempen-Audy combination had reeled off 988 miles and nine laps, retaining their two-lap lead over the Peden-Fielding, Letourneur-LePage and Hurley-Bartel teams. Point totals were unchanged.

The morning's spill went to Max Hurley, Toronto, who gashed his neck on the boards, but was not seriously hurt and continued. The cut was not deep enough to require stitches. Bernard Stubecke, speedy German rider, crashed his head on the boards yesterday evening and suffered a six-inch cut. The injury was attended and the rider continued.

The standing at 11 o'clock follows:

Miles Laps Pts.
Van Kempen-Audy	988	7 200
Peden-Fielding	986	7 197
Letourneur-LePage	986	7 101
Hurley-Bartel	986	7 85
Rush-Beckman	986	1 171

Bill Terry May Quit As Player

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 25.—Because he's "getting too old to play all these double headers," Bill Terry, thirty-six-year-old manager of New York Giants, said here yesterday the first-base position on the champion team may be open next season. "I'm getting too old to play all these double headers that were piled on us last season, and I can't stand it much longer."

CALGARY MAY NOT COMPETE

Altomahs Having Trouble Financing Grid Series With Vancouver Meralomas

May Stage One Game; Default Would Put Coast Champs Into Western Final

Vancouver, Oct. 25.—Possibility Calgary may not participate in the western Canadian football play-offs this fall, was indicated in a telegram received by the Meralomas Club here yesterday from Calgary Altomah Tigers. The Alberta champions are faced with financial difficulties, the message intimated. It was originally proposed the Meraloma-Tiger inter-provincial argument be decided in two games, but Calgary will be unable to finance more than one game, and this on November 4, the message said.

Should Calgary be forced to drop from the title picture, Meralomas would play Winnipeg or the Saskatchewan champions in the western final.

Calgary, Oct. 25.—The Vancouver Meraloma-Calgary Altomah football battle will be a one-game affair here November 4, if the local club can raise sufficient money to guarantee the coasters $600 for traveling expenses.

Hal Lewis, vice-president of the Altomah Club, yesterday said an organized drive to sell tickets for the sudden-death game was under way, in an effort to raise the $600 and enough money for other expenses. A week will be required for the ticket sale, he said. At the end of this period Altomahs will know whether they can finance the game.

In the report of Saturday's school children's gala which appeared in the Times on Monday evening the Monterey School was given second place in the boys' relay for the Canadian Legion Cup, when the honor should have gone to the Boys' Central.

U.B.C. WILL MEET ALBERTA

Canadian Football Squads Will Meet at Vancouver to Decide Western Title

Varsity to Defend Hardy Cup; Other Intercollegiate Competition Arranged

Vancouver, Oct. 25.—Promises of intercollegiate competition in sport, solid plank in the platform speech of every student politician at the University of British Columbia, will be realized within the next three weeks, it was indicated yesterday.

One prairie varsity and two United States teams will visit Vancouver to meet the Blue and Gold.

Heading the athletic programme is a forthcoming series for the Hardy Cup, emblematic of western Canadian intercollegiate football championship. Professor Matthews of the University of Alberta has written, challenging U.B.C. to defend the cup. Defeat of the Alberta squad by the Calgary Tigers last Saturday made it possible to hold the counter of 1931. Dr. Matthews, in a letter to Dr. Gordon Shrum of Varsity, states that the Edmonton boys will present a powerful aggregation and are at present under the guidance of the man who sent Moose Jaw through to two Dominion finals. An elaborate build-up for the series, which will be on a flat guarantee basis, is being planned by Archie Dick, Jack Turvey and Varsity henchmen.

GOLF MATCH
University of Washington golfers will invade the University golf course November 4 for their annual match with U.B.C., according to advices received from John Schwager, manager of golf at the Husky institution.

Washington will probably send an eight-man team, according to Schwager, but he fails to state whether Albert "Scotty" Campbell and Harry Givan will be included in the line-up. Encouragement was given to the golf project by John Boyd, owner of the University golf course, who announced that he would play host to both teams on November 4 and put up an intercollegiate cup, to be played for annually by the two universities. W. C. Charlton, executive of B.C. golf, has also promised replica of the cup.

Frank Keillon, manager of track at the University of Washington, sets November 24 as the tentative date for a prospective U.B.C.-Washington track meet to be held in the Seattle Stadium. Varsity track men will keep in shape for this meet with regular exhibition affairs.

Battaglia Registers One-round Knockout

San Jose, Cal., Oct. 25.—Frankie Battaglia, 161, Minneapolis, knocked out Al Schaaf, 158, Los Angeles, in the first round of a scheduled ten-round main event here yesterday evening.

Montreal Maroons Abandon System of Set Forward Lines

Coach, Eddie Gerard Figures He Will Get More Value Out of His Material

Hockey Experts Watch Experiment

Nels Stewart Reports to Boston Bruins; Toronto Leafs Speed Up Practices

Montreal, Oct. 25.—Keen eyes of the hockey experts will be trained on Montreal Maroon forward lines when the National Hockey League season starts. Coach Eddie Gerard has decided to toss overboard the idea made popular in recent seasons of keeping intact various strings of attackers. The Maroon coach's idea is if a man is a good centre, right or left wing, he will be effective on any line. He figures he will be able to get more value out of his material by switching his players rather than keeping them in one combination.

Far from abandoning the fixed-line idea, Coach Dick Irvin of Toronto Leafs is planning another. He has "Ace" Bailey and Dick Kilrea working on either side of Bill Thoms and while they have not practiced long together are shaping up well.

NELS STEWART REPORTS
Big Nels Stewart, usually a laggard in getting into shape, reports to Boston Bruins twelve pounds lighter than when he showed up for training last year. With Marty Barry and Dit Clapper, holdouts, also returned to the fold, only Eddie Shore, delayed at his Saskatchewan farm, is missing from Boston Bruins' training camp.

Perhaps the NRA has something to do with it. At any rate Lester Patrick, vice-president and coach of New York Rangers, announced yesterday seat prices would be increased. Recently Toronto Maple Leafs, who held out against demands for reductions last year, also announced they would raise their prices.

Lester also let it be known Babe Selbert is his only holdout but he did not announce the bar to his signing. Perhaps, in view of the seat price increase, the Babe has demanded a salary increase.

With the signing of Tuffy Abel, giant defenceman, Chicago have all but two of their players under seal. Tommy Cowie is due to look over a contract to-day, while Lionel Conacher will be along later in the week.

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 25.—With their ranks intact for the first time since they went into training during the latter part of last week, Toronto Maple Leafs turned on the "heat" during a ninety-minute workout on ice yesterday.

As two full squads, under the direction of Coach Dick Irvin, went at it hammer and tongs, Smythe from his post, orange the press box sat back, contented and happy, humming "the last roundup."

Feature of the session was the performance of Happy Day, captain of last year's team, who looked up on one defence with Alex Levinsky and gave Goalie George Hainsworth ample protection.

"Jumping Benny" Grant in the other end was well fortified by the presence of King Clancy and Red Horner in front of him. The Conacher-Primeau-Jackson trio looked after the offensive work for this combination, receiving relief from Boll, McDonald and Doraty.

The two veterans, Ace Bailey and Hec Kilrea, teamed up with Bill Thoms for Hainsworth's side, Sands, Blair and Cotton relieving them.

Ottawa Amateurs Not Turning Pro

Ottawa, Oct. 25.—Reg. Shields, Ottawa amateur, who has been trying out with Chicago Black Hawks at Urbana, Ill., will not turn professional this year, it was learned here yesterday. He expects to return to the Maritimes, where he played last year.

Another Ottawa amateur, Jack Draper, who has been trying out with Canadiens at Kingston, has returned to his home here and will play with city league teams this winter.

Uplands Women To Play in Team Match

Women members of the Uplands Golf Club will engage in team match to-morrow, with Mrs. Semple, captain, heading one squad and Miss Grant, secretary, the other. Play on handicap will start at 1:15 o'clock.

The draw, with the captain's team first named, follows:
Mrs. Semple vs. Miss Grant.
Mrs. Shore vs. Mrs. Clubb.
Mrs. Garrett vs. Mrs. Watson.
Mrs. Pocock vs. Miss B. Fisher.
Miss Mackenzie-Grieve vs. Mrs. Jackson.
Mrs. Galton vs. Mrs. Lane.
Mrs. Woodcroft vs. Mrs. Nixon.
Mrs. Simpson vs. Mrs. Fisk.
Mrs. Combe vs. Mrs. Parrott.
Mrs. Fletcher vs. Mrs. Cameron.

Lester Patrick Now a Director

New York, Oct. 25.—As a reward for his excellent work in piloting New York Rangers to triumph in the Stanley Cup hockey playoffs last April, Lester Patrick, manager and vice-president of the club, was elected a member of the board of directors at a meeting of that body yesterday.

Colonel John Reed Kilpatrick was elected president of the organization to succeed William F. Carey, former presy of the club.

ADANACS ARE HOOP THREAT

New Westminster Lines Up Strong Squad For Senior Men's Competition

Mayers, McEwan, D'Easum and Gifford Back; Play Varsity This Evening

Vancouver, Oct. 25.—Some time before 9 o'clock to-night Tanny Butler, former Varsity star, now coaching New Westminster Adanacs, will have to pick five men from a squad of thirteen to take the floor against Varsity in the first senior A basketball game of the season on the Lower Mainland.

The battle marks the opening of the Greater Vancouver Athletic Association's hoop season, and will be staged on the Queen's Park Arena floor in New Westminster, under the supervision of Referees "Jit" Lewis and Ralph Thomson.

Butler has only four of last year's Adanacs turning out. Wally Mayers, Jack d'Easum and Steve Gifford, two ex-Varsity performers, Ken Wright and Ben Mathison, are doing a lot to ease Butler's mind, while Hal Gordon, Joe Kellington, and Wally Gray, all possessing considerable senior A experience as former "Y" Husky stars, are included in the turnout.

FINE MATERIAL
Ken Mathison, Al Davey of lacrosse fame, and Morris Finnelly, last year with Highway Fur, round out the squad and give Coach Butler some promising material to work with.

Varsity will probably use exactly the same line-up they tossed in against Victoria Blue Ribbons, Saturday night. They have Laurie Nicholson, Jimmy Burdell, Bob Ceborne, "Horse" Douglas and Dick Wright of last year's crew along with three former Ex-King George stars, Frank Hay, Art Wough, and Ralph Henderson, and two senior B hoopers, Bob McDonald and George Pringle.

Mayor A. Wells Gray has promised to toss up the first ball in the Adanacs-Varsity game, which takes place at 9 o'clock, being preceded by two inter-mediate tussles, Ryerson and St. Andrews girls, and Victoria Comets and Ryerson boys following.

The new lighting system installed for lacrosse has made the auditorium one of the best in the province in the west, and some fast ball is anticipated.

V.A.C. MEETS WESTMINSTER

Revamped Squads Tangle To-night in Big Four Canadian Football Match

Coach Norm Burley has groomed V.A.C. in a highly specialized passing attack and defence for the Big Four Canadian football clash with New Westminster, at Athletic Park to-night, at 8 o'clock, under one light.

Although admittedly weakened in thrust through the line by the loss of their plunging halfback, Bill Henderson, through injuries, Norm Trassolin can be counted on to break out in a rash of Westminster forward passes, most of which are short and rifled to the receiver.

Big Mac McRae, mentor to "Tip" Robertson's Royal City grid squad, admitted to-day that he would not be in uniform himself and would also be without the services of Mackie at tackle, as well as some of Jack's Max, Sammy Alivazoff and Bobby Bourne, the latter an adept at snaring forward passes.

Westminster rather pins its hopes on the brilliant ball totting of Oscar Swanson, who was transferred from centre back as well as from Jack's Max, and on the arm of Don E. Stewart, one of the ace inside in the leisure, is out of town.

Winnipeg Boasts Formidable Entry For Grid Finals

Amalgamation of Two Leading Teams Gives Manitoba Champs Powerful Squad

HAVE EYES ON WESTERN TITLE

Three American Player-coaches Handle Club; Meet Saskatchewan Champions

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Amalgamation of Winnipeg's best two rugby teams, the importation of three star United States player-coaches, and the threatened collapse of the Regina Rough Riders as perpetual threats for western Canada honors, has given Winnipeg rugby supporters hope that laurels of the gridiron may come back to the prairie capital after an absence of seven years.

The Winnipeg rugby team already has clinched Manitoba honors and the right to play in the western Canada playoffs. Their hopes of supplanting Al Ritchie's famous squad in the quest for the Canadian title, will be determined as the play-downs progress.

The Winnipeg rugby team is a welding of the former Winnipeg and St. John's teams, with the best players of each team from the past season. Material which is highly regarded by the coaching triumvirate. Their biggest handicap is lack of opposition, the Winnipeg Rugby League consists of only two city teams. This handicap has been partly offset by exhibition games with North Dakota teams, an experiment which appears to have injected new fighting blood into the band.

AN EXPERIMENT
The trio of American coaches is centering its instruction on one team for the first time. Last year Russ Rehbock, former University of Wisconsin player, was the coach of St. John's, winners of the Manitoba title.

Carl Cronin, a former star at Notre Dame, under the late Knute Rockne, coached the Winnipeg. This year the two are lined up with Winnipeg with Gregory Kabat, a former running mate of Rehbock at Wisconsin. Cronin is head coach. Rehbock looks after the backfield, while Kabat takes care of the line.

All three are playing coaches. Rehbock excels in broken field running, kicking and heaving forward passes, while Kabat is a wizard in the line. He is big and fast, a track athlete among other things, and he has injected new life into the line.

The now defunct St. John's team contributed the Moberly Brothers, Tom and Herb, Alf. McLaughlin and Eddie Kushner, a young battle cruiser at middle wing.

NATURAL PLAYER
Cronin has with him again this year the cream of western Canada centers. "Roy" Adelman, a natural rugby player, if ever there was one. Cronin has gained on many centers in his time, but he regards Adelman as one of the brightest prospects he has ever seen. "Roy" is a human dynamite on the offensive, while on the defensive he is a wall of nothing to be feared. He is the most consistent snarer of loose balls Winnipeg ever has seen.

In Cronin, Rehbock, McLaughlin and Steve Olander, who broke from the junior ranks to St. John's last year, Winnipeg have half-backs who are great kickers, forward pass exponents and ball carriers. Working behind a line that gives them plenty of protection, this quartette offers an offensive threat no team can afford to discount.

BOLSTER WEAK SPOTS
If there is a weak spot in the team it appears to be on the ends of the line. The trio of coaches has bolstered this weak spot to some extent and in the tuning-up games for the western Canada playoffs they will endeavor to plug these gaps effectively.

Cronin, Rehbock and Kabat have a fine team to work with this year. The team may not survive the western Canada playoffs, although they have been scored a break in the finals. Saskatchewan winners play here on the first Saturday in November, while British Columbia is playing in Alberta. If the Pegas are successful against Saskatchewan they will play hosts to the victors of the British Columbia-Alberta fracas. The psychological advantage of playing on their home grounds may be just the slight leverage needed to steer them through to a western Canada championship and a crack at the eastern finals.

Jim Browning In Win Over Lutze

Albany, N.Y., Oct. 25.—Jim Browning defeated Nick Lutze, California, with a turnover in twenty minutes and forty-three seconds in a wrestling match here yesterday evening. The match was limited to one fall by the 11 o'clock law. Browning weighed 230 and Lutze 210.

WRESTLING

Newark, N.J.—Frank "Man Mountain" Dean, 302, Atlanta, and Sander Saabo, 228, Hungary, drew.

MAJOR S. HENSON IS NEW PRESIDENT

Officers of the Victoria Church Badminton League were named at the annual meeting in First United Church schoolroom recently when Major Sam Henson was appointed president for the ensuing term. Other leaders named were: V. Erith, vice-president, and H. L. S. Blake, secretary-treasurer. The league is to commence its schedule during the second week of next month.

NEW MEMBERS ON COMMITTEE

H. A. Tomalin, Bob Travis and Lt.-Com. Wood Select McKeech Cup Rugby Teams.

Changes Made to Important By-law of Constitution Regarding Player Transfers

Two new members were appointed to the selection committee which every year chooses Victoria's McKeech Cup rugby squad, at a meeting of the local union yesterday evening. The trio this year is H. A. Tomalin, former referee; Bob Travis, Canadian Scottish manager, and Lieut.-Commander Wood, sports officer of the navy.

The committee formerly consisted of Bob Travis, Bob McInnes and Carew Martin. The last named is now head of the board of referees.

Important business of the meeting included the repealing of by-law No. 9 of the constitution and substituting the following: "Each club shall register with the secretary of the union, a list of playing members at least three days prior to the opening game of the season. Every such list shall be accompanied by a registration form signed by each member therein mentioned. It shall not be necessary for any club to furnish additional signed registration forms from season to season in respect of members who are once registered with that club, and a member who is properly registered as a playing member of that club until the secretary is notified in writing to the contrary. The name of any new playing member joining a club after the commencement of the season must be submitted to the secretary together with his signed registration form at least three days before he plays in his first game with that club."

Section 4.—Except as hereafter provided a playing member may transfer to another club at any time during the playing season after he has submitted to the secretary together with his signed registration form at least three days before he plays in his first game with that club.

Section 5.—A member who is transferred to another club at any time during the playing season after he has submitted to the secretary together with his signed registration form at least three days before he plays in his first game with that club.

"King" Clancy Married to Toronto Girl

Another member of the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey team turned benedict at Toronto recently when Frank "King" Clancy was married to Miss Ray Howard. After the wedding, King and his bride attended the rugby game in Hamilton, and later left for New York. They will live in Toronto during the hockey season.

Equipoise-Winooka Race Is Off Again

Much Talked of Racing Event Cancelled Through Dispute Over Size of Purse

Winooka's Handlers Demand $25,000; New Zealand Horse in Race To-day

New York, Oct. 25.—The proposed Equipoise-Winooka match race, bringing together the equine champions of the United States and Australia, yesterday definitely was marked off the racing calendar.

Scheduled to be run at Belmont Park on November 7 as the feature of the United States one-day meeting, the race was cancelled by C. V. Whitney, owner of Equipoise, in a telegram to Rufe Maynor, manager of the New Zealand horse tour.

Failure of Whitney and Maynor to agree on the size of the purse led to the dropping of negotiations for the first international match race since 1907. Whitney had proposed a $5,000 purse, to be donated by the Westchester Racing Association, of which he is a prominent stockholder, but Maynor is said to have held out for $25,000.

Previously Whitney had agreed to race Equipoise at seven furlongs instead of a mile, while Maynor had accepted the American's proposal the horses carry 126 pounds.

WINOOKA RUNS TO-DAY
Winooka was scheduled to make his eastern debut to-day, meeting four of the country's leading horses, in the $2,500 challenge purse at Laurel, Md. Equipoise is being thrown out of training and soon will be shipped to Whitney's breeding farm in Kentucky.

Winooka's opponents in the special six furlong dash, which carries a purse of $2,500, added were:

The Jersey Stable's Character, Lee Roenbergs's Kerry Patch, Mrs. S. H. Fairbanks's Gold Spot, and Mate, owned and trained by A. C. Bostwick. Kerry Patch and Character, three-year-olds, were to carry 116 pounds, while the other three, all older, had a 120-pound impost.

RUSSIA NEEDS FOOD IMPORTS

Associated Press
London, Oct. 25.—Observers in close touch with the Russian situation expressed amazement to-day at a report from New York a $500,000,000 credit was being sought on behalf of the Soviet in connection with the overtures looking to possible United States recognition—with $450,000,000 wanted for machinery and steel rails and $50,000,000 for cotton.

The observers said rails formed one of the direct of Russian needs, but pointed out Russia's most urgent needs were foodstuffs and livestock of all kinds. Independent agricultural economists here say Russia could absorb the whole world's agriculture surplus on long-term credits.

Instead, it was noted, farmers in the United States are destroying millions of pigs they could have shipped to Russia.

REFUSES PRO BERTH
Prince Albert, Sask., Oct. 25.—Phil Beeler, manager of the Humboldt Indians forward line last season, has rejected a berth with Boston Bruins to play this season with Prince Albert Minors. Beeler, who is only twenty-one years old, prefers another year in amateur hockey ranks.

BILLIARDS
Britannia Branch No. 2 yesterday evening scored a 44-point victory over Pro Patria in a C section match of the Interservice Billiard League. The score was 488 to 444, Britannia registering two victories and losing the other two by six points.

Saanich Thistles Will Engage Wests In Coast Football

Former Defend League Leadership Saturday at Match at Heywood Ave.

ESQUIMALT TO TAKE ON CITY

Dockers May Introduce New Players; Two Second Division Games Are Billed

Teams in the first division of the Victoria Coast Football League will return to league competition on Saturday afternoon with a pair of matches. Two fixtures will also be played in the second division. Saanich Thistles, pace setters in the senior group, will engage Victoria West at the Heywood Avenue grounds, with Robb as referee, while Esquimalt and Victoria City will clash at the lower Beacon Hill grounds, with Aleock in charge.

The second division engagements will bring together Esquimalt and Victoria City at the Beacon Hill grounds, and the Thistles and Wests at Heywood Avenue. Saunders will referee the former match and Davies the latter. All four fixtures will get under way at 2:45 o'clock.

ONE POINT LEAD
After the upset of two weeks ago, which saw Victoria City hand the Wests a 4 to 1 defeat the Thistles moved into first position by a single point margin over Esquimalt and the Wests tied for second place. The City are fourth, one point behind the runners-up.

To retain their hold on top position the Thistles must defeat the Wests, and it will not be an easy task. Although beaten by the City the green-shirts have a promising looking club, and rate with the best in the league. On their last appearance the Saanich lads knocked over Esquimalt 2 to 0. The Thistles will also seek revenge for the 3 to 2 defeat suffered at the hands of the Wests in the opening games of the schedule. According to reports the Wests will try out Les Griffiths in goal. The green-shirts have experienced with three first minsters already this season. Griffiths is a former Wednesday League goalie.

Much interest is also being shown in the City-Esquimalt encounter. After the loss of Miller and Worswick from their forward line, the City must be reckoned with in the championship race. Esquimalt, following the loss of Miller and Worswick from their forward line, the City must be reckoned with in the championship race. Esquimalt, following the loss of Miller and Worswick from their forward line, the City must be reckoned with in the championship race.

It would not be surprising if they trotted out some new material this week-end.

Big Crowd Enjoys Splendid Programme at Crystal Garden Entertainment

Entertainment of wide variety, including a concert and vaudeville show, swimming gala and dancing, provided diversion for the large crowd which gathered at the Crystal Garden yesterday evening, when the Rotary Club were hosts in the interests of their boys' work fund. R. B. Webb was the able and genial chairman, and every item of the well-arranged programme was enthusiastically applauded.

VARIETY PROGRAMME
The concert arranged by T. P. McConnell and Walter Fletcher, and given in the lower hall, included many selections by the Victoria Boys' Band. This was followed by the fencers, who included Miss G. Tapley, Messrs. William Murray, Robert Meldrum, P. E. Smith and E. Farrell. Fred Wright rendered "Bass Solo." Miss Barbara Grove, Victoria's Vesta Tiller, was greatly applauded. Dances by the pupils of Miss Violet Dances included an acrobatic number by Eugene Doherty and a gypsy dance by Georgina Dowdall. A cornet trio was given by Bandmaster George Green, and Bandmen Jack Grant and Bryan Price.

Pupils of the Russian School of Dancing who performed, were: Myra

Eventually the bridge would go over of its own accord. In a sense, so far as it may financially concern us. Do do the Turkish commander did, leave these critics and obstructionists to perish of their own accord.

To-day two cities are spending millions, or have done so—San Francisco and Sydney in Australia—just to connect two parts of each city.

Here we have a vast country with the ports all frozen up on the Atlantic side part of each year, with the exception of Halifax. The water, we are now told, seems to be shrinking in some of the Great Lakes back east, so that many ships cannot get to sea with capacity cargoes of wheat, etc.

What may some minor form of earthquake do in the future to further it, when water is stored above sea level. Then what have you left in the way of ports for this great country of the future?

This island, perhaps, is destined to support millions yet, and to attempt to sever its connection with the mainland, and any rail or road connection with our city, which is the first and last port of call on the Pacific, by destroying Ripple Rock, would be to incur the curse of ages. Some say the building of the Pyramids were the height of man's folly. To destroy this rock under such geographical circumstances and in the eyes of future generations.

WATER GALA
The water gala commenced at 9:45 p.m., immediately following the concert, which included an exhibition by Mrs. Mary Ellison, Mrs. E. Steel, Mrs. Robert Hibernson and Miss T. Rideout, while a diving exhibition was given by Messrs. Philip Bond and Kenneth Billingsby. Several other novelties were featured, among which was the water polo between the navy and local swimming teams. The events were arranged by A. H. Cowlishaw.

Interpersed during the dancing was a cornet solo by George Green, exhibition waltz by Berna Waring, jazz dance by Phyllis Addison and Wynn Shaw, trombone quartette by members of the Boys' Band, piano tricks by Bert Moore, and a cornet ensemble in which twelve boys from the band took part.

A most attractive programme of latest dance numbers, with several of the old-time pieces played as encores, by an excellent orchestra, concluded a most successful and jolly evening's programme.

Plan Concert At Unemployed Rooms
The first of a series of concerts, under the direction of Thomas Obe, will be presented by well-known artists at the "Citizens' Recreation Rooms, Port and Langley Streets, Friday evening at 8 o'clock. A two-hour programme has been arranged and Percy C. Payne will act as chairman.

The complete programme follows: Jerry Schofield, piano; Thomas Kelway, community songs; Thomas Obe, comic songs; A. McKinnon, tenor; Harry Hutchinson, humorist; Jack Pullen, violin; Stanley James, varied entertainment; Frank Merryfield, conjuring acts; "Yorks," ventriloquist; D. Matthews, club swinging; Ernest Impett, comic songs; the Sisters Finn, varied dancing; Bert Ray, tap dancing, and William Anderson, violin.

BRIDGING SEYMOUR NARROWS
To the Editor:—Re this subject in last Thursday's Times, stating there had been about $6,000,000 already spent on relief work in this province. Much of this was on road work these last three or four years, which needed it, but anything now, I think, in this way would be a waste of public money, with no major undertaking yet accomplished, such as the building of the West Coast road, or the bridging of Seymour Narrows.

Something of this sort should now be done, if this government, or any other, are to escape severe criticism, by people and governments of the future, for the way all this money is being spent.

Wheat Prices Again Sweep Upward With Some Profit-taking

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Wheat prices swept sharply higher on the grain exchange to-day as traders placed a bullish interpretation on the United States money policy. Values at the top were three cents over the previous close in the nearby month; and despite profit-taking, prices ended with net gains of 2½ to 1½ cents.

Volume of trade for the day was heavy, as exporters, southern interests, commission houses and locals entered the pit on the buying side in the early trading. Offerings on the whole were light and the finish was strong.

October and November wheat closed at 65½, December 65½, and May 69½ cents.

Export interests reported Canadian wheat to the extent of 750,000 bushels had been sold for shipment aboard. This, combined with bullish enthusiasm over gold developments and light offerings, accounted for the early advance.

Why Pity Man With Nagging Wife?

Dorothy Dix

Says: Let Him Cure Her

Why Doesn't the Man Who Moans His Life Away Over His Wife's Faults, Try to Cure Them Instead?—Dorothy Dix Lists Remedies for Nagging, Extravagance, Poor Housekeeping and Dumbness

THE four faults of wives to which husbands chiefly object are nagging, extravagance, poor housekeeping, dumbness. Practically every man who is disgruntled with the woman to whom he is married and who considers marriage a failure charges his wife with one or the other of these defects, but he never seems to think that there is anything he can do about it. He just accepts it with patience and fortitude, or bitterness and curses, according to his nature, but he never seeks to find out the why of his wife's shortcomings.

Take nagging, for instance, which is the most common vice of wives, and which does more to reconcile husbands to the brevity of life than anything else in the world. Often when the rosy mists of the honeymoon have cleared away, a man finds himself committed for life to the custody of a female jailer who supervises his uprisings and his downfalls, and tells him where he gets on and gets off. From morning until night it is "John, do this, John, don't do that. Don't get your feet wet. Button up your overcoat. Take your umbrella. Eat spinach. Cut out meat. Don't drink two cups of coffee," and so on, and on. A human phonograph that never stops.

And if the poor man has weakness, or has ever made a mistake, she plays upon it as upon a harp with a thousand strings. She isn't satisfied to deliver one curtain lecture and let that end the matter. She makes it a continuous performance. There are men who have had to listen for forty years to their wives' reproaches about the time they drank too much at an alumnae reunion, or who have had the money they lent a poor relative, who failed to return it, thrown in their teeth 10,000 times.

Surely no affliction that a man brings upon himself by his own folly is harder to endure than a nagging wife. And this being the case, you would think that some man of an investigating mind would try to find out why wives nag. Apparently none does. Yet the riddle is easy to read, and the remedy simple.

The reason wives nag is because they haven't enough different interests in their lives. They don't see many people, and so they focus their gaze upon their husbands and watch them as a cat does a mouse. They haven't anything new and thrilling to think about, and so they dwell on the same old subjects. They brood over a foolish until it becomes a crime, and turn a carelessness into a premeditated insult.

Nine naggers out of ten could be permanently cured by getting them to join clubs and play bridge and by taking them out to places of amusement. The way for a man to keep his wife from trying to reform him is to set her to work to reform the Hottentots.

Then there is extravagance. Millions of men spend their lives with their noses to the grindstone, only lifting their heads to emit wails of agony over the way their wives spend money. Yet how few men ever really try to cure their wives of the vice that may be wrecking the whole family! How few men ever tell their wives just what they are making, or give them any idea how much they are entitled to spend. How few men ever try to teach their wives anything about handling money wisely and well.

They content themselves with raising ructions over the bills every month, which does no good at all, because the wife reasons that if she is going to be hanged anyway, it had as well be for a sheep as a lamb, so she has two muttous charged on her account at the department store. But far otherwise would it be if her husband made her feel that he was dealing generously with her, but that her thrift was as much a factor in their prosperity as his earning capacity. The very women who throw money at the stars for the family pocketbook, make a wife a keeper of the purse and she is pretty sure to put a Yale lock on it.

And there is bad housekeeping. Most men marry to get a comfortable home, and things cooked the way mother used to cook 'em, and they are naturally bitterly disappointed, and feel that they have been gyped in marriage when they don't get them. Now most men who draw sloppy housekeepers and poor cooks in the matrimonial lottery seem to live up to her standard. It is the famous housekeepers who work themselves to death to justify their reputations. The reason most women get slack in their housekeeping is because their husbands gobble down a dish they have spent three hours in preparing without even noticing what they are eating.

But this is undue pessimism. They need not mourn without hope. There is hardly a bad housekeeper in the world who couldn't be turned into a good one by the judicious application of flattery. If her husband booted her bread instead of battering it, she would become the champion breadmaker of the community because she would have to live up to her standard. It is the famous housekeepers who work themselves to death to justify their reputations. The reason most women get slack in their housekeeping is because their husbands gobble down a dish they have spent three hours in preparing without even noticing what they are eating.

And dumbness. The excuse that philanderers oftenest give for roaming is that their wives don't understand them, and bore them to tears, and are not companionable. Nearly always this is the man's fault, because he either picked out a mutton for a wife, or because she did not train his wife to read and think, but let her go one way while he went another. There are mighty few wives who wouldn't pal with their husbands if they would let them.

Perhaps if men would help their wives to correct their faults there wouldn't be so many men complaining of what they get when they married. DOROTHY DIX.

Wonders of Nature

MT. VESUVIUS

Italy has a natural wonder which ranks among the great ones of the earth—a volcano which has been alive for more than 1,850 years. It is known as Mt. Vesuvius.

Right now Vesuvius is "smoking," but it has been doing that for years. The dust and steam which it is sending up is no proof that it will have a violent outbreak in the early future.

Another city, Herculaneum, was buried by hot mud which flowed from the sides of Vesuvius during that eruption.

From that time on, Vesuvius was a danger spot. Ashes were blown in the air in 472, and winds carried them hundreds of miles eastward. People in Constantinople reported that some of the ashes dropped in their city.

Forty years later, after another eruption, ashes were carried southward across the sea, and landed in Tripoli. In later centuries came other times when Vesuvius sent forth angry words that it was still alive. One of the worst explosions took place in 1793. A great river of lava poured from the volcano, and went rolling down the side. At places the lava river was forty feet thick! It traveled four miles to the sea in the course of six hours. That is a fast rate for lava to travel.

Luckily a lava river does not travel so swiftly as would water going over the same course. The lava, which was sent out in 1793 went faster than usual—four miles in six hours—but the people in the town of Torre del Greco had time to get out of the way before their homes were destroyed.

Back in 1906, however, a mighty eruption took place. Dust and steam were shot to a height of four miles. Great flames rose from the crater. Explosions tore holes in the side of the mountain, and from the holes poured lava. Part of the rim of the crater was blown away. Ashes fell like snow around the countryside, and brought enough pressure on the roof of a store in Naples, ten miles distant, to crush it in.

That was a fierce eruption, but it did not bring so great a loss of life as occurred when Vesuvius first wrote its name in history, in the year 79.

After a sleep lasting no one knows how many thousands of years, the volcano burst forth and caused a rain of ashes which buried Pompeii, a city with 20,000 inhabitants. Many of the people saved themselves by running away, by riding in carriages, or by going to the shore of the Bay of Naples and taking boats; but others died amid the ashes.

Graf Zeppelin At Akron After Fight With Bad Weather

Great German Airship Circled About Field All Night in Howling Gale

Flew Through Fog and Low Pressure Areas on Voyage From Florida

Akron, O., Oct. 25.—After manoeuvring through gusty winds and rain squalls for 9½ hours, the Graf Zeppelin floated down to the giant Akron airdock shortly after 5 a.m. E.S.T. to-day for a landing.

All through the night the German airship had awaited a lull in the weather to make a refueling stop here on its trip to Chicago.

Snow began swirling about the silver hulk of the dirigible as the ground crew completed the task of fastening the ship to the mast. Battling stiff head winds, and rain squalls, the famous Graf Zeppelin, arrived over the Akron airdock yesterday evening at 7:15 o'clock (E.S.T.) out of the south on its trip from Miami to Chicago. She was unable to land as scheduled because of the weather conditions.

Twenty-one passengers, including an eleven-month-old baby and the crew of forty-seven officers and men were aboard.

Periodically and in terse language the ship's commander contacted the airport wireless station near the huge hangar where the Graf Zeppelin spent the night, advising the waiting officials and ground crew that he felt constrained to cruise around until the wind dropped.

FLEW IN FOG

The disturbance climaxed a full day of flying in dirty weather for the transatlantic airship. Reports throughout its voyage from Florida told of fog and low pressure areas which, in one instance, led Dr. Hugo Eckener to do some circumnavigating to avoid bad spots.

Appearing over the port here approximately twenty-two hours after leaving Miami, the Graf shot a blue spotlight onto the field to get its bearings and then, in the teeth of a wind which at gusty moments reached a velocity of almost sixty miles an hour, drifted off to wait until the elements had become mollified.

The huge ship, with mast aloft, turned sufficiently to reach the port, in spite of the wind, quenched its spotlight and stood by, sometimes plainly visible, at other times out of sight. At 9:45 p.m. the ground wireless had no further word from Eckener regarding the possibility of a landing. Earlier the grizzled commander of the bag had stipulated that the wind must drop to fifteen miles an hour before he would think of dropping a rope. Full of moisture, the wind cut through clothing like a knife, and airport stamped about to get warm or tried to squeeze their way into the small restaurant at the administration building for warmth and food.

BIG SUIT DISMISSED

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—(Associated Press)—A $181,000 suit brought by the North Dakota-Montana Wheat Growers' Association against the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, was dismissed without prejudice in district court yesterday on motion of the plaintiff, Attorney Arthur Le Sueur, as witnesses whose testimony was essential were not available. The association alleged the Farmers' National "conspired" to wreck it by withdrawing financial support.
